

MARTIAL LAW RULES ARGENTINE

HOOVER GETS CHANCES TO EXPLAIN POLICIES

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington (CPA)—Following the custom of other presidents Herbert Hoover will explain the policies of his administration during the month of October, coincident with the consideration by the electorate of the candidates for congress they will elect in November.

Every president receives scores of invitations to make addresses but as a rule the chief executive picks out those which afford him an opportunity to develop a theme related to current policies.

Mr. Hoover can discuss naval and land armament as well as prevention of war on the occasion of his address before the American Legion convention in Boston.

Labor policies and employment are the natural topics for the president's speech before the American Federation of Labor on the same day in Boston.

Foreign relations and particularly the growth of untrusting feeling with great Britain furnish a background for a speech at the one hundred and sixth anniversary of the battle of Kings Mountain in North Carolina.

The business and financial outlook unquestionably will be discussed by the president in his address before the American Bankers association in Cleveland.

HOOVER KEPT HOME

These four speeches occur between Oct. 2 and Oct. 6, and it would not be surprising if during the latter part of October Mr. Hoover made another important address.

Several weeks ago it was thought that the president on his way back from his vacation which it was then proposed he should take in the west would make a keynote speech that would be helpful to the Republican candidates in the congressional campaign.

However, the drought, crisis and other important tasks have kept the president in Washington continuously. It was only recently that the political reorganization of the president's party was effected.

With Senator Fessenden in command of the campaign activity and with results of a preliminary canvass of sentiment available, it became evident that the Democrats were making a Hoover administration the issue and that the Republicans were asking for more support from the White House in conducting the battle.

If the president is unpopular the strength of his party in the campaign is correspondingly diminished and anything he does to improve his own political position is considered helpful to the candidates for congress.

It is not believed that the president will make a direct appeal for party support in his speeches but that he will supply take advantage of his prerogative as chief executive to discuss important policies. Every administration is usually on the defensive and therefore anything which the president says will be used by his followers in the campaign.

In order to make a strictly political speech the president could if he desired accept an invitation from any of the several Republican clubs in the large cities.

The congressional leaders are anxious to have the president argue his case as often and as forcefully as possible. It is a pressure from which few presidents are able to escape.

ALLEGED BANK ROBBER DROPS DEAD IN CELL

Detroit (AP)—William Butler alias Banner, who was held by the Detroit police in connection with a Matavuan, N. J. bank robbery, dropped dead in his cell last night, depriving police of the $200 reward for his capture.

Butler, reputed to have been a nationally known racketeer, was arrested more than a week ago. He was alleged to have participated in the robbery of the First National bank at Matavuan. The reward offered for his capture stipulated that he must be turned over to New Jersey authorities "alive."

New Jersey authorities had notified Detroit police that they were on their way to Michigan to obtain extradition papers.

$130,000 IN GEMS SEIZED BY 4 ROBBERS

Jason F. Whitneys and Party, Returning from Theatre, Are Victims

Evanston, Ill. (AP)—The Jason F. Whitneys and a party of four en route to their home in Evanston after attending a theatre were robbed of jewelry valued at $130,000 early today by four young robbers, two of whom wore handkerchief masks. Whitney is president of the Kraft-Phoenix Cheese company.

One of the members of the party was James A. Hewitt of Manchester, England, who is a house guest of the Whitneys.

The party had attended the theatre in Chicago and were dropping one of the guests, Mrs. Gladys S. Mehan, at her home when the Whitney car was crowded to the curb by the robbers' machine.

Rings, bracelets and necklaces were stripped from the women quickly at the point of revolvers. The robbery was executed so quickly that the bandits' car had disappeared into the darkness toward Chicago before the alarm could be spread.

Mrs. Whitney reported her personal loss was $125,000, including a ring valued at $50,000.

After the theatre, the party had stopped at a restaurant where, police believe, the planning scene was observed by the four men who a few minutes later stole them.

Mrs. Whitney was the immediate objective of the robbers when they surprised the party. One of the bandits started tearing her ornaments from her until she exclaimed, "I'll give you everything if you won't harm us." Then they allowed her to hand over the valuables.

Besides the ring, 15 carats in size, Mrs. Whitney lost five bracelets and a necklace. One of the other women was allowed to keep her necklace, comparatively modest in value.

The bandits also demanded the keys of the Whitney car, which they carried off with them to prevent immediate pursuit. The Evanston police were notified by telephone and flashed word of the robbery to Chicago. A radio alarm sent 15 squad cars to Sheridan road in an effort to intercept the bandits.

Besides the Whitneys, Mrs. Mehan and Hewitt, the party included Mr. and Mrs. Oliver A. Blackburn. Mr. Blackburn is secretary of the Kraft-Phoenix corporation.

MEYER RETURNS TO SERVICE WITH U. S.

New York Financier Is New Governor of Federal Reserve Board

Washington (AP)—Eugene Meyer, of New York, returned to the government service today after an 18-month absence, holding a recess appointment as governor of the federal reserve board. The appointment takes effect immediately.

President Hoover announced Meyer's selection late yesterday to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Roy A. Young, of Minneapolis, who has accepted the governorship of the Boston federal reserve bank.

Meyer was in the government service from 1917 until 1923. He served as managing director of the War Finance Corporation throughout its active life, and was successfully appointed to that organization by Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge. In 1927 President Coolidge appointed him to the federal farm loan board. He served as its chairman through the period of reorganization.

The Meyer appointment caused another vacancy which must be filled by the president. Edmund Platt, vice-governor of the board representing New York, resigned his post since no two officers of the board may come from the same district.

DRY REPEAL FAVORED BY NEW YORK LEGION

Saratoga Springs, N. Y. (AP)—The American Legion, department of New York, concluding its annual convention here today, passed a resolution favoring repeal of the 18th amendment and the return of state rights. The vote was 370 to 155.

"The resolution said that the Eighteenth amendment 'violated the fundamental American right of local self government' and that it 'surrendered to federal authorities police duties over the habits and conduct of individuals which rightfully belong to the state.'"

The Legion further resolved that it demanded 'redress of these wrongs, through restoration to the several states of the right of their people to enact such liquor laws as they may respectively choose.'"

DAUGHTER-IN-LAW OF GRANT DIES IN HOME AT CAPITAL

Washington (AP)—Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, who as the daughter-in-law of President Grant once was a brilliant leader of the capital society, died last night at the age of 76.

She had been confined to her home for some years by ill-health. Heart disease, complicated by ailments of old age, brought about her death. Her failing health recently brought her relatives to the bedside. Among them were her children, Princess Michael Cantacuzek-Speransky and Lieutenant Colonel U. S. Grant, 3rd.

Must Keep Up Wages Of Workers

Aboard Army Engineers Mission River Boat General Allen, Near St. Louis (AP)—Maintenance of the present level of wages for laborers on army engineering projects for the remainder of the fiscal year was ordered today by Secretary of War Hurley.

Simultaneously the war secretary directed Colonel George R. Spaulding, division engineer in charge of the upper Mississippi, Ohio and Missouri rivers projects to investigate charges that contractors were cutting wages on contract work let before the present deflation set in.

These two decisions were made by Secretary Hurley before landing at St. Louis to complete the first lap of his inspection trip down the Mississippi.

The order relating to the maintenance of the present standard of wages on work which the government is doing itself will remain in force until June 30, 1931. It was addressed to the acting chief of engineers, Brig. Gen. George B. Pillsbury at Washington, after a conference between the secretary, General Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, and Col. Spaulding aboard the General Allen. The order was handed to General Brown for forwarding to Washington and read as follows:

General Brown said the order would affect many thousands of laborers on government work directed by engineers in all parts of the country, and particularly along the Mississippi and its tributaries.

While the secretary declined to comment on the reports reaching him that contractors had cut wages on old contracts pending Col. Spaulding's report, it was understood Hurley's action was based mainly on the appeal made recently by President Hoover at his conference with industrialists not to cut wages of workers. The attitude of the secretary is that the maintenance of wages for workers now employed is a highly important part of the president's plan to relieve the temporary deflation.

Of course young Kulback never did have a key to the store, but the locksmith had no way of knowing that, so he unlocked the door.

But Kulback did not have the combination to the safe. As he had the locksmith open the store a customer entered behind them. Kulback waited on the customer, meanwhile giving the combination of the safe to Phillips and telling him to please open the safe.

This done, the locksmith said his bill was $7. Kulback paid him out that, so he unlocked the door. He had gone, and when the locksmith had gone, Kulback took what other money he could find and went away.

Now he has been arrested and held to the grand jury after confessing.

Men Get Better Quality Clothes For Less Money

Dollar neckties still cost a dollar, but what a necktie is for value is. That's the key to the situation in men's clothes this fall—no change in price ranges, but better merchandise for the money.

As is the case in most other merchandise this fall, values in men's clothing for the coming season are head and shoulders above those of any season in the past three years.

Standard makes retain their regular prices, but fabrics, trappings and tailors are so far superior that the shopper can take the same pride in a suit or overcoat bought at a 10 to 20 per cent reduction below last year's outfit. For instance, just about the same suit that sold for $60 three years ago, for $45 last year, can be had for $30 this year. The $150 tie 1929 is considered a desert for $120 this year.

Consolidation of churches advised

Hartford (AP)—Consolidation of churches into a "larger parish plan" today was advocated as a means of combating the admitted financial difficulties confronting many religious organizations.

Dr. A. Z. Mann, who spoke before the eighty-fourth annual Wisconsin Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, said it was obvious that expenses of the church must be cut, since the church is in some respects a material organization and very often an informal corporation.

He said the most satisfactory solution of the difficulty where small churches were concerned would be consolidation. He cited the merger of six Methodist churches in Racine, which formerly had six pastors, but now operate efficiently with two.

HOLD CHILD HEALTH CLINIC AT HORTONVILLE

Dr. Elizabeth Taylor of the bureau of child welfare of the state department of health will have charge of the child clinic to be held at Hortonville Tuesday. The clinic will be conducted at Legion hall and will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning continuing until 4:30 in the afternoon. Children up to six years of age will be examined.

FOUR MEN IN ITALIAN PLOT ARE EXECUTED

Pay With Lives for Offense Against Fascist Regime and Mussolini

Triest, Italy (AP)—Four men whose son was terrorism against the Fascist regime in Italy, and a plot to kill Premier Mussolini, paid with their lives today for their offense.

The four were led out at dawn, strapped in chairs and put before a firing squad. The firing squad was composed of Blackshirt or Fascist militiamen.

It was the third occasion in which capital punishment in this form has been inflicted in Italy since 1860, and brought a total of six thus executed. The executions were under the law passed in November, 1928, which provided a special tribunal for trial of offenses against the security of the state and set the death penalty by shooting for those taking attempts against the lives of the king, other royalty, or the head of the government, that is, Mussolini.

All executed in this manner have been shot the morning succeeding sentence.

The four men executed today were members of a group of 18 tried on charges of 13 murders, 31 attempted murders, bombing, burning of schools and asylums, spreading of subversive literature and supplying military secrets to Yugoslavia.

Two others of the plotters were acquitted and the remaining 12 were given sentences ranging from 21 years to 30 years in the penitentiary. One woman received the lowest sentence.

The quartet went to a glittering end. The Fifth Battalion of Blackshirts and judges of the special tribunal arrived at the military parade ground of Basovizza at 5 o'clock. There were 600 Fascist lined up on three sides of the special firing squad, which was composed of 56 Blackshirts in four squads. This was the scene when the command to fire was given at 5:43 a. m.

At midnight the four condemned men had signed requests for clemency, to be transmitted to the king. The commander of the army corps at Triest refused to forward the requests.

YOUTH GETS HELP IN
ROBBING SHOE STORE

Chicago (AP)—Manuel Kulback, 18, conceived the idea of robbing a South State shoe store but figured it would be too much work, so he got some help.

As told to Judge Burke yesterday, the story was that Kulback called upon Andrew Phillips, a locksmith, and said: "I have lost my key to the store. Please unlock the place for me."

Of course young Kulback never did have a key to the store, but the locksmith had no way of knowing that, so he unlocked the door.

ENGAGEMENT OF ILLUSTRATOR TO MODEL ANNOUNCED

New York (AP)—The engagement of McClelland Barclay, widely known illustrator, to his debutante model, Miss Helene Marie C. Haslin, has been announced.

Miss Haslin is the original of the Fisher bodies girl, whose slim beauty has illuminated the advertising pages of magazines and enhanced the artistic reputation of Mr. Barclay.

Before she met the artist and consented to pose for him, Miss Haslin was launched on a stage career, making her debut in "Ripples" last season. She is 19 years old.

Barclay was previously married to Nan McClelland Barclay, his cousin, a Washington society girl. They were married in 1916 and divorced in January, 1930.

Kill Man In Holdup At Hotel

Richfield (AP)—Two men who shot and killed John Frey, 24, German town, during a holdup of the Meeker Hill hotel near here, and their companion, were believed at large today in a River Hills police squad car which they commandeered after severely beating Policeman Thomas Berries.

Two of the men entered the hotel bar room last night and ordered the proprietor's daughter, Martha Rademann, to put up her hands. She obeyed. Frey, a patron made a dive for a rear door. Each of the robbers shot once, a bullet striking Frey in the head, and another in the chest. He fell dead across the doorway.

Rademann came from a rear room and was covered by the robbers' pistols while they took $18 from the cash drawer. They escaped with a third man, J. J. Seaman.

A few minutes later, Berries, riding in a squad car for the exclusive Milwaukee suburb with his wife, saw a parked car. Noticing a shotgun in the car, Berries asked the men their business. They jumped on him and beat him for an answer. He shot once and was believed to have wounded one of the men. Berries was forced from the car and rushed to her husband's side. The men abandoned their machine and speeded away in the police car.

GIANT LINER STRIKES TWO RIVER BARGES

One of Smaller Craft Sinks When Ship With 538 Passengers Rams It

New York (AP)—The liner Leviathan swung out of her course by a strong tide, rammed two barges in the Hudson river as she departed for Europe today with 538 passengers. The liner was undamaged and continued to sea.

One of the barges, fouled by the port anchor of the liner, was dragged several hundred feet down the river, overturned and sunk. Three men leaped to safety from the two barges, owned by the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

The incident was expected to give Commodore Harold Cunningham a new point in his argument with the Pilot's Association of New York as to who should pilot the ship in and out of the harbor.

Commodore Cunningham for several years had used only William McLaughlin, who, he said, was the only man competent to handle the biggest thing afloat, with her draft of 36 feet, in the waters of New York harbor.

This summer, when the association assigned another pilot to the task, the commodore brought the ship in himself as he is qualified to do. He continued this procedure each time a strange pilot was assigned. After several conferences he made peace with the association and since the first of August has accepted the pilot assigned.

Pilot Frank D. Wall was on the bridge today when the accident occurred.

The pilots are paid on the basis of the draft of the vessel—the number of feet she extends under water—and McLaughlin therefore had the most remunerative job. Whether this was the cause of the association's rule of rotation was not known.

TWO MEN HELD IN DOUBLE SLAYING

Question Oil Field Worker and Mexican in Murder of Couple

Los Angeles (AP)—An oil field worker and a Mexican were held today for questioning about the murder of Lois Kentle, Los Angeles society girl and her fiancé, Francis Conlon, of Ensenada, Mexico, recently, while police sought a third suspect, an automobile salesman.

Harry H. Harmon, 23, Valley Center, Kas., oil worker, was arrested yesterday by officers who collected a bullet hole in the windshield of his automobile. He was questioned about the slaying when police found a newspaper in his car failed to display a story of the stabbing.

Paul Gallion, who accompanied Harmon to Ensenada, said the trip was made two days after the double murder and that Harmon had shot through his own windshield. He was released, as was Miss Clytie Conlon, riding with the oil field worker when he was arrested.

Miguel Garcia, the Mexican suspect, was arrested yesterday after the body of his wife, hacked to death with a knife, was found in their home. Officers said the wounds on her body bore a marked similarity to those which took the life of Miss Kentle and her fiancé.

Hollywood police announced they had obtained a felony warrant charging grand theft against an unnamed automobile salesman who is sought for questioning in connection with the murders. They said the salesman had quarreled with Conlon over Miss Kentle. Shortly after the double murder was discovered, police said the salesman disappeared with an automobile belonging to the firm he worked for.

ELsie JANIS DECIDES TO RETIRE FROM STAGE

Los Angeles (AP)—After a career of 25 years on the stage, Elsie Janis announced last night she had quit the footlights forever.

The announcement came seven weeks after the death of her mother, Mrs. Josephine Janis—a death which broke up a mother-and-daughter companionship that was considered notable in theatrical circles.

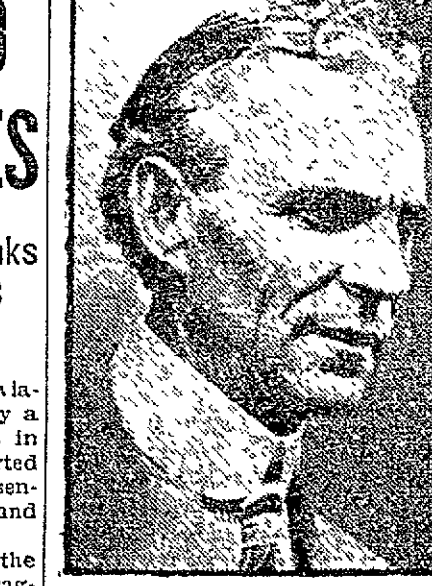

"I could not quit the stage as long as mother was with me," said Elsie Janis. Now that she has come away I have decided to do the thing I long have wanted to—retire."

Miss Janis has been writing for the screen under contract.

ANOTHER BEAUTY SHOP BOMBED IN CHICAGO

Chicago (AP)—Another beauty shop bombing, the second in two days, occurred last night at the front of the Famous Beauty Shop on N. Dearborn street between 12th and 13th streets. The $1,000 damage was caused by a bomb which exploded at 11:30 p. m. The shop was closed for the night but was being advertised "permanents" at cut rates.

HENRY FORD

An early end to the business depression was predicted by Henry Ford as he sailed for Europe on a six weeks' business and pleasure trip. He also expressed his opinions on prohibition and politics.

Ford Sees Early End Of Slump

New York (AP)—Sailing aboard the liner Bremen for a six weeks' business and pleasure trip in Europe, Henry Ford predicted an early end to the present business depression.

He said the depression might outlast October, but that business now was better than two years ago. He ascribed the growing prosperity to the people substituting "thinking" for "speculating."

He said he would combine business and pleasure on his trip and he, Mrs. Ford and the party of three who were accompanying them, would motor through France and Germany, stopping at the Ford factory at Cologne. The others in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Hodges, of Detroit, and E. G. Liebold, his secretary.

The party had boarded the North German liner by a lower gangplank and the fact that Mr. Ford intended to sail was not disclosed to newspapermen until after he was aboard. He then received them in his suite.

Asked his opinion on politics and prohibition, he said no politics existed in America today and that prohibition was here to stay. "Except for a damp spot here and there," he said, "America is dry."

Questioned as to the truth of reports that the Ford company planned the manufacture of six-cylinder cars, he got more important news for you than that. "I'm building a hotel," he said.

"For rumors," he said, spelling out the last word.

CHARGE MEN WITH HAVING STOLEN CAR

Go to County Jail Until Sept. 15 in Default of $1,000 Bond

Cecil Wendstadt, 23, Shawano, and Leslie Gregory, alias O'Connor, 24, Minocqua, are in county jail in default of $1,000 bond, pending their trial Sept. 15, on a charge of having stolen a car in their possession. Gregory waived preliminary hearings while Wendstadt made no plea.

The two men were picked up by Sergeant Detective Matthew McGinnis and Officer Albert Deitgen, Friday when they attempted to trade the car to a local garage. The garage owner became suspicious because the car carried an Illinois license and called police. The car was found to have been stolen from W. L. Waterman, Niles Center, Ill.

Questioned by Chief George T. Prinn of the local police department, the men said they had been hitchhiking from Milwaukee when picked up by a man driving the car. They drove to St. Paul with him where he told them the car had been stolen and gave it to them.

Gregory, or O'Connor, has been in court here before on worthless checks. Chief R. H. McCarthy of Kaukauna now has a warrant for him charging him with passing two worthless checks at Kaukauna, one for $5 and one for $20

Speed Up Relief Work In Stricken Santo Domingo

LIST OF DEAD INCREASES TO ABOUT 2,000

No Water Fit to Drink in City—Food Profiteering Is Stopped

BULLETIN
Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic.—(P)—The number of dead in the hurricane disaster this afternoon was placed at not less than 4,000 by Dr. Antonio Calderon, charged by President Rafael Trujillo with the direction of the sanitary service.

BULLETIN
Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic.—(P)—A squadron of six Cuban airplanes, bearing physicians and medical supplies, landed here at 10:30 a. m. today to bring relief to hurricane stricken Santo Domingo. Marine corps airplanes flew from Port-au-Prince yesterday.

Santo Domingo.—(P)—Relief agencies speeding to the assistance of this stricken city today encountered conditions of horror which have been accentuated rather than mitigated since the storm Wednesday.

Between 1,500 and 2,000 persons, it is estimated now, died in the hurricane which swept Santo Domingo, cradle of the white race in the new world. More than 5,000 were injured. Thirty thousand are homeless and of 10,000 buildings but 400 are left standing. Property damage will pass $20,000,000.

A United States marine corps officer who flew over from Port au Prince commented: "It is as if a giant hand had smeared the town down like a toy and then had stirred the pieces with a stick."

"There is no water fit to drink. The water works are demolished, the river is a sea of mud and the dead are still uncounted."

FLOODS WASHED AWAY
Floods have washed out the newly buried dead in the cemeteries and coffins float around like corks. The dead are being collected in mounds and heaps and trenches and are being burned above ground. Concrete cisterns are being used as funeral pyres, cremating as many as 50 bodies at a time.

"Even at a distance of 10 miles and at an altitude of 4,000 feet in the city, as was apparent, bodies were being burned. When we landed we could see wagons being towed with dead. The driver would sigh and curse and cry, 'more! dead, more dead.'"

"Nine out of every 10 trees are down and the tops of the few left standing have been cut off as if by a great knife. The Ozama river is out of its banks north and east of the city and these sections are completely inundated."

"Men and women appear with little or no clothes on. There is almost no clothing to be had and children and older people make out as best they can. The people appear to be in a daze and almost hysterical."

LANDING FIELD CLEARED
While the landing field here has been cleared sufficiently to permit landing of relief planes from Port au Prince, Havana, the United States and Porto Rico, the landing of ships is not so simple. The Ozama river is a raging torrent pouring out over a bar at its entrance which effectively

Frenchmen Win $25,000 in Long Flight

Completing an epochal 5400-mile Paris-to-Dallas flight, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French conquerors of the Atlantic, are shown here surrounded by the cheering throng that greeted them when they landed at the Texas city to claim the $25,000 "pot of gold" at the end of their rainbow-like trail. After qualifying for the prize offered by Colonel William E. Easterwood, Dallas capitalist, the air heroes began preparations for their triumphal cross-country tour to Washington, via Louisville.

MAN FACING CHARGE OF ATTEMPTED RAPE ESCAPES FROM JAIL

Saving two iron bars in the window of his cell in Waupaca jail, Forest Gormley, 32, Clintonville, who was being held for trial on an attempted rape charge, escape Friday night. He was arrested by county officials last June.

John Nolenberg, Waupaca ice man, who was making his daily rounds Saturday morning, noticed the window minus two bars, and immediately notified authorities.

An investigation was instituted this morning by Sheriff Arthur Steenbeck, and six other prisoners in the jail were questioned, but none of them knew anything about the escape. They said they didn't hear the saving.

An automobile owned by Martin Craig was reported missing Saturday morning, and authorities are attempting to link the missing car with the escape.

blocks what was the old harbor. One authority said he did not believe even a navy launch could cross the bar.

The suggestion has been made that the relief ships may disembark their cargoes and men at San Ceronimo, four kilometers, south of the capital, where there is a good beach. Some supplies, food, medicines and even shelters have already arrived here by airplanes which also brought doctors for treatment of the sick and injured, and it is understood others are enroute.

The president stopped food profiteering yesterday with an order that all food was to be sold at cost, under pain of court martial.

Paris.—(P)—The international Red Cross committee and the league of Red Cross societies today appealed to all national Red Cross societies for funds to relieve hurricane sufferers in Santo Domingo. The action was taken on advice from the Dominican Red Cross to the effect that international aid would be necessary.

PLANES LEAVE MIAMI
Miami, Fla.—(P)—Two airplanes left Miami today for Port au Prince, Haiti, the first planes to go from this point into the eastern part of the West Indies since the hurricane struck Santo Domingo Wednesday.

The first plane left at 6:19 A. M. E. S. T. It was chartered by representatives of a News Reel company which seeks pictures of the storm stricken area. The second plane, the regular West Indies Limited of Pan-American Airways, left at 6:44 A. M. E. S. T.

In event of good weather conditions, airplane service between Miami and San Juan, Porto Rico, will be reestablished today, Pan American officials said. A Miami-bound airplane left Port au Prince early this morning and was due to arrive in Miami late today.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS ARE FELT IN ITALY

Melfi, Italy.—(P)—Several light earthquake shocks were felt here yesterday, continuing until there was a very strong one of five seconds duration at 10:30 p. m. The excited population rushed to the streets shouting but were quickly calmed by the authorities. There were no casualties and no damages.

GOVERNOR CHARGES MADISON RING DOES NOT STICK TO TRUTH

Kohler Claims Opponents Have Lost Right to Citizen's Respect

Kenosha.—"Unscrupulous and reckless disregard for truth has cost the Madison Ring politicians every right to the respect of decent and honest Wisconsin citizens," Governor Walter J. Kohler declared in an address here today. The governor spoke to an assembled crowd in front of the library steps after delivering a message of welcome at the National Bicycle races which are being held in Kenosha.

"It is to be regretted that this is so," the governor continued, "because the people of the state are entitled to unimpeachable honesty in discussion of the issues in any political campaign."

"In my keynote speech several weeks ago I proposed, among other construction suggestions, the establishment of a central detective bureau to keep records and identification data, and to make available to local police officers, the services of experts in crime detection."

"There was nothing whatever in the suggestion which could by honest and sincere persons be construed to mean anything but a civil body of experienced men trained in the science of apprehending criminals."

"However, the clear and plain intent of my recommendation has not, apparently, in the least deterred unscrupulous politicians from distorting the scientific group of civil experts which I recommended into a menacing and desperate military force whose sole purpose is to shoot down the wives and children of working men."

TELLS FACTS
"I had thought that the misrepresentation of my position in this matter was so great that it would not be necessary for me to emphasize the true facts."

"However, it has recently come to my attention that some otherwise well informed labor leaders in Wisconsin, among whom is Senator Thomas Duncan of Milwaukee, have been misled by these political misrepresentations."

"Neither organized nor unorganized labor should or will have the slightest objection to a crime detecting bureau such as I recommended. A detective bureau of that kind is already functioning in Milwaukee County with notably successful results in the apprehension of law-breakers. Police departments of local communities are similar law enforcing organizations against which there has been and can be no objection on the part of honest men."

"Wisconsin in the past has been notably prompt in convicting criminals. Much of our freedom from crime has been due to this, and local law enforcement officers are deserving of much credit for their effectiveness. However, with changing conditions and with greater organization among criminals, it is becoming increasingly difficult for local officers

PASTOR RETURNS FROM VACATION

Dr. H. E. Peabody, who has just returned from his vacation at Ephraim, will conduct the regular service at the Congregational church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. Mrs. Lacey Horton will sing and Mrs. R. J. Watts will preside at the organ. Holy Communion will be administered Sunday, Sept. 14.

JUNIOR CHAMBER TO DISCUSS STATE FAIR

Winners in City Championship Golf Tournament to Get Awards

Whether the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce will take part in the proposed Wisconsin "Good Will" tour will be decided at the weekly dinner meeting of the group at Hotel Appleton at 6:30 Monday evening. Initial plans for the tour were inaugurated at a recent meeting of state junior chamber directors at Eau Claire.

Plans for a "Get Out and Vote" campaign for this fall's election also are to be discussed. If the group decides to take up the project, committees will be appointed at the next meeting, Sept. 15, it was announced. Winners in the city championship golf tournament will be present, Monday evening to receive the championship cup and medals to be awarded to those who won honors in the various flights.

Other reports and business matters also will be discussed.

to cope unassisted with this problem.

"It will be obvious to every thinking person that only few counties can establish and support an efficient detective organization on its own resources. The state, however, can support a bureau whose services will be available to any county upon request. Only by some such machinery can organized crime be effectively combated today."

"The contemptible misrepresentation of office seekers or their supporters will rightfully be resented by the fair and decent citizens of Wisconsin."

"I can think of no defensible principle which can justify the use of such misrepresentation to gain public office in this or any other state."

"However, I am confident that the people of Wisconsin will distinguish between truth and falsehood. I do not propose for one moment, to deviate from the campaign of fairness, honesty, and truthfulness which I waged two years ago and am waging now."

At seven o'clock this evening Governor Kohler is scheduled to speak at Manitowoc, and at eight thirty he will be the main speaker at a political rally in his home county in Sheboygan. Extensive arrangements have been made, including an automobile parade to make the Sheboygan meeting a home county affair welcoming their neighbor.

LAWRENCE COLLEGE READY TO WELCOME FROSH NEXT WEEK

Special Program Planned for Entertaining Advance Guard of Freshmen

Advance contingents of the class of 1934 will arrive on the Lawrence college campus next week to participate in the freshmen week program beginning Wednesday. The program conducted by Dr. R. C. Mulliken, director of instruction and freshman class adviser, is designed to induce the new students to their new environment without the harassing attentions usually given them by wiser upperclass students.

Wednesday Lawrence college freshmen will register, be photographed, welcomed, advised concerning their courses of study, and officially received at the home of the president of the college by President and Mrs. H. M. Wriston. Beginning Thursday the new students will be given a series of tests in English and foreign languages, designed to aid in placing them in class sections according to their respective abilities. Conferences with faculty advisers, concerning courses of study, will comprise the greater portion of the week's program. Special upperclass student committees will meet with freshmen to discuss all extracurricular activities, fraternities and sororities, athletics, and general campus life. Physical examinations, mixers, dances, and official receptions all come to a close Monday, Sept. 15, the day before the upperclass students arrive for registration. College classes begin Wednesday, Sept. 17.

The upperclass students who have been invited to come back to aid in the program are: Emory Ansorge, Gillett, Russell Denyes, Robert Eads, Cecelia Werner, Ramona Hueseman, Bernice Schinige, Appleton, Paul Fischel, Manitowoc; Hazel Glue, Elwa Rivers; Harold Sprick, Joannette Jenkyns, William Bickel, Evan McDonald, Oshkosh; Charles Barnes, Robert Mulford, Rockford, Ill.; Carl Bury, Fond du Lac; Irma Molzow, Beaver Dam; Virginia Call, Green Bay; Helen Erickson, Gladstone, Mich.; Verna Lantzen, La Crosse; Wayne Vincent, Menomonie; Millie Marsh, Monroe; Irene Ungrodt, Washburn; Mary McCormick, Wild Rose; Carmen Negrescu, Clara Bunde, Chicago; Agnes Snell, Fort

SAYS FARMERS SHOULD BE TAXED ON INCOME

Muscodia, Wis.—(P)—Farmers should pay taxes according to their income and not on the basis of excessive land valuations, Solomon Levitan, state treasurer, said in a campaign speech here tonight.

"The farmer, who must own land in order to produce a living for himself and his family, has under our present system of direct taxation, had to shoulder the big tax burden on his land," the speaker said. "During the last few years taxes have been increasing faster than the value of the farmer's land. As a matter of fact, while taxes on farm lands have increased 120 per cent in the last eight years, the value of farm lands in the U. S. has fallen off twenty per cent since 1920."

SAMUEL SIGMAN

FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY

WE DO NOT WISH TO FORGET!

Representative free government was endangered by the effort to put across a Manager Form of Government for Appleton. Attorney Samuel Sigman was one of the first to publicly and fearlessly fight this menace. He is the only candidate for District Attorney on the Republican ticket to take a stand on this question and to openly oppose its adoption. As on many other great public questions affecting the laboring man, the farmer and independent business man, Mr. Sigman consistently and publicly expressed his convictions in the interest of the people. He voiced their interest even at the expense of hostile opposition to himself and ridicule by the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Some may differ with Mr. Sigman but every one cannot help but admire him for his fearless position. His type of men are needed in public life. His character, ability and record as an attorney, fits him well for the office of District Attorney.

Appleton organized labor for these reasons and appreciative of his sincere helpful and able assistance as attorney for the Appleton Trades and Labor Council endorsed Mr. Sigman for District Attorney. His election to the office of District Attorney will give Outagamie County a worthy public servant.

SEVERAL HUNDRED FARMERS EXPECTED AT EQUITY PICNIC

Congressman Schneider Will Be Speaker at Event at Pierce Park Sunday

Several hundred farmers are expected to attend the picnic of the Outagamie Equity Exchange Sunday afternoon at Pierce park here. Members of the Equity, their families and friends have been invited to attend the affair which will start in the morning and continue all day. Congressman George J. Schneider, who is a candidate for reelection, will give an address in the afternoon. Members of the arrangements committee also have extended an invitation to the general public to attend the event.

A basket lunch is to be served at noon and during the afternoon the Equity will serve sandwiches and dairy lunches. There is to be a program of music in addition to a soft ball game between a married and a single men's team; a horse shoe tournament and other games and contests.

Athletic contests for the men include a fat man's race, back to back race and a pipe race. For the ladies, a dash, milk bottle race, rag chewing contest and a needle threading contest. Boys and girls under 13 years of age also will have a group of races and contests in which to compete. There will be a dash for boys and for girls, a boys' shoe race, girls' paper race, drive pig to market race, and boys' sack race. For children from 13 to 18 years there will be a girls' potato race, boys' dash, boys' wheelbarrow race, cracker-whistling contest for boys and a marshmallow contest for girls.

Horse shoe pitching will take place all day with the basket lunch at 12:30. At 1:30 there will be music and at 2 o'clock there is to be an address by Congressman Schneider. At the same time the contests for the younger boys and girls will be conducted in a different section of the park. At 2:30 the races and games will be staged while at 3:15 there will take place the soft-ball game and the cow calling contest.

Members of the committee in charge of arrangements for the picnic are: Charles Schroeder, Theodore Glasser, George Weighing and Louis Stecker. Gus Sell, county agent, also is aiding in the arrangements.

BLOCKED STREETS ARE BEING OPENED

Barricades and Street Flares Are Being Removed as Work Ends

One by one the red flares are flickering into oblivion, and two by two the white and red city street barricades are being piled in the street department yards. After a nightmare summer of rows and rows of red danger torches and blockaded streets, Appleton is beginning to convalesce from a seizure of street operations. First it was the removal of streetcar rails, then the paving and resurfacing, and finally the patch work.

Within the next day or two the Caughlin construction. Companies whose smoking, spitting black rollers have trundled through most of the city during the summer, will finish its work in Appleton. The summer asphalt program included the resurfacing of Oneida-st, Lawrence-st, Washington-st, and Midway, the paving of Rankin and Hancock-sts, the filling in of trenches left by the removal of streetcar tracks on College-ave, Prospect-ave, Rankin, Pacific, North, and Oneida-sts, the paving of the College-ave, and Oneida-st, Prospect-ave and Memorial dr, intersections, and asphalt patchwork. E. H. Bass, superintendent of the work, employed about 40 men steadily throughout the summer.

COMMITTEE TO MAKE BID ARRANGEMENTS

Arrangements for securing bids on a tractor and two trucks, equipped with snow plows are to be made at a meeting of the highway committee Monday afternoon. The committee also will arrange to take bids on two carloads of snow fence. This material will be paid for from an appropriation of $25,000 provided by the county board at a special meeting in the last part of August.

Rid Superior-St Dump Of Vermin, C. Of C. Asks City

MAYOR GETS REQUEST FOR QUICK ACTION

Schlitz Points Out That Pests Are Endangering Health and Business

Urging Mayor John Goodland, Jr., to use his influence in directing some immediate action to rid the Superior-st dump of the vermin that are a distinct menace to the health and safety of the city and offering the assistance of the chamber of commerce in any program undertaken, H. A. Schlitz, president of the chamber of commerce, corresponding with the mayor Saturday morning on the urgent necessity of ridding the dump of the pestilence.

The letter states: "The vermin that are at present overrunning the dump are making it a Superior-st between College and Lawrence-st., is a distinct menace to the health and safety of our community. Their presence are without question seriously jeopardizing the business of many of our merchants in the vicinity of Superior-st dump, besides infesting the homes of residents and public institutions in the immediate neighborhood.

"I wish at the present time to respectfully urge you to use your power and influence in directing some immediate action that will remedy this situation and protect the health and property of our citizens."

"If the assistance of the chamber is needed in any way in furthering your plans on this subject, I want you to feel free to call on us."

CARRY ON

Undaunted and unabashed by their water, fuel, oil, lime and calcium chloride, invasions to move from their "infested territory," the sturdy cockroaches that have infested Appleton still reign supreme. Carrying burdensome loads of white lime and black oil on their backs they trudge here and there on the dump, climbing over the top of grounds like so many waterbugs.

Saturday morning the street commissioners, Theodore Albrecht, called three or four unfortunate bugs and like a cock dropping, boiled them into cold water to test its thickness, slipped them into a liquid pool of calcium chloride to determine the effect. Making a valiant attempt to swim to the other side of the pool, the insects soon withered and died.

The effect of the chemical, carried over on their backs like dead goldfish and succumbed to a watery grave. The assumption is that a sufficient amount of calcium chloride over a large enough territory will ultimately sound the death knell for the roaches.

With the cockroaches for pestiferous honors is an army of rats. Three sharpshooters, Alderman Richard Groth, Ed Hauert and Bill Steigeburg, have formed a shotgun brigade and every night after dark they wait for the regiment of rats that are poking its way over the top of the dump. With their rifles equipped with flashlights to illuminate the rats in the spotlight for the few minutes before they go west, the three men are materially reducing the army of rodents.

4,000 ACRES ARE BURNING IN IDAHO

Fires Set by Unemployed Men Seeking Work, Supervisor Reports

Levison, Idaho—(P)—Four thousand acres of timber land were ablaze in the north central Idaho region today. Including six fires which E. H. Myrick, supervisor of the St. Joe National forest, said were set by unemployed men seeking work.

The only blaze out of control was a fire in the Willow creek district near the town of Levison. The fire had spread over 1,000 acres and was burning in the north central Idaho region today. Including six fires which E. H. Myrick, supervisor of the St. Joe National forest, said were set by unemployed men seeking work.

The man-set blazes, Myrick said, were not giving concern and it was believed they would be checked without great difficulty. No arrests had been made.

Fifty men were fighting a fire in the Willow creek district near the town of Levison. The fire had spread over 1,000 acres and was burning in the north central Idaho region today. Including six fires which E. H. Myrick, supervisor of the St. Joe National forest, said were set by unemployed men seeking work.

The fire was reported to have covered a large area. Both fires were believed of incendiary origin.

APPLETON MAN CELEBRATES HIS 80TH BIRTHDAY

Julius Wittlin, who makes his home with his daughter, Mrs. Henry Tillman, 614 E. Franklin-st., is celebrating his eightieth birthday anniversary Saturday.

A family dinner will be held at the Tillman home Sunday for immediate relatives.

Mr. Wittlin was born in Germantown, Washington, Oct. 6, 1850, and was married to Julia Hardy in 1876 at Stephentown.

Mrs. Wittlin died a year ago last June. They lived on a farm in the town of Carter until about 10 years ago when they moved to Appleton. Mr. Wittlin, who is president of the Wittlin Brothers and company fox farm, spends his summers on the farm and his winters at the Tillman home.

REQUEST SURVEY ON HUGE BARGE-CANAL PROJECT AT PARLEY

Seven Appletonians Attend Federal Hearing at Oshkosh, Friday

A proposed nine-foot barge canal, connecting Lake Michigan and the Mississippi from Grish Bay to Prairie du Chien, was approved Friday as a vital link in the planned St. Lawrence-Gulf of Mexico waterway by a group of more than 100 persons at Oshkosh.

Appleton representatives at the meeting were: J. E. Orison, J. W. Orison, William Van Nortwick, J. E. Everett, government engineer, Kenneth Corbett, secretary of chamber of commerce, Mayor John Goodland, Jr., and Alfred Bosser, city attorney. Little Chute was represented by Anton Jensen, and Kaukauba by Ben Prugh. Other cities represented were Green Bay, Manawa, Berlin, Neenah, Portage, Menasha, Oshkosh, and those in the Wisconsin river valley.

The proposed canal would follow the Fox and Wisconsin rivers where possible. Allan H. Tripp, president of the Association for Relief of High Water, said. Government engineers, present at the meeting, said they would consider the proposal and ask congress to authorize a survey if they deemed it practicable.

Charles A. Halbert, state engineer, said that construction of a power dam would net the government about $1,000,000 annually and finance the canal project.

Among government officials present were Major Harry M. Tripp, Milwaukee, district engineer; A. F. Everett, government engineer, Appleton, and Fred Nizen, Milwaukee.

RELIC FROM NOBILE'S EXPEDITION FOUND

Tromsø, Norway—(P)—Just as experts here finished examination of the Andre Relics, the widely known hunter, G. B. Jorner, who has been on Edge Island, east of Spitzbergen, came sailing in from the north. He brought with him a relic which it is believed belonged to General Umberto to Nobile's Italia expedition.

The relic is a magnetic instrument in a mahogany box. Its supposed history is interesting but not so important except to scientists who are studying the direction of currents in the arctic ocean.

The Tromsø experts think the instrument came from Nobile's camp east of Cape Woe in the Krasnaya found him. The mahogany box drifted on the ice this long distance and arrived in perfect condition.

APPLETON GIRL GETS DECREE FROM CHICAGO

Mrs. Helen Macky, 22, Appleton, was granted a divorce from William Macky, 22, now residing in Chicago, by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Saturday morning.

The couple was married at Waukegan, Jan. 14, 1929, and separated Feb. 21, 1930. Mrs. Macky charged cruel and inhuman treatment alleging that shortly after her marriage and while living in Milwaukee, she came to Appleton to visit her mother and after two weeks she wrote Macky for money to return to Milwaukee but he failed to send it.

Last month she had Macky arrested for non-support and while he was in jail here it was agreed she get a divorce. Mrs. Macky was given permission to resume her maiden name of Helen Parker.

SAYS INDUSTRY IS CAUSING SPIRITUAL DECAY IN COUNTRY

Expansion in Cities Hits Small Communities and Challenges Church

Richmond Center—(P)—The spiritual decay of country communities caused by industrial expansion of large cities presents a challenge to the church, R. J. Colbert, chief of the bureau of economics and sociology, University of Wisconsin, extension division, said in a speech before the clergy here today.

"Today about 52 per cent of the population of the country lives in urban centers of more than 2500 while 29 per cent live on farms and 19 per cent live in villages," he said. "This has not been merely a shift of population. Even more pronounced is the shift of progress, of prestige and of the stuff of which progress and prestige are made. It has had the effect of draining the leadership that is needed in our rural life."

During the first century of the United States' existence, educational opportunity and religious life were evenly distributed but the shift to the cities reversed this advantage.

Prof. Colbert said in pointing out the wide gap between services given to the country church and that of the town and city church.

The bulk of the membership of most Protestant churches came from the country, Prof. Colbert said. One problem incurred by this movement is the loss of potential members in the shift.

"Among Protestant churches," he said, "there are more than four million more children in the country than in the cities. Thus the country population is predominantly one of youth. Its type of service, however, is too often turned to the older age groups."

"The number of children under 15 per 1,000 adults 22 to 44 years of age is another reflection of the nature of country life. Thus in Wisconsin there are 835 children per 1,000 adults. The ratio in the village is 886 to 1,000 and in the cities of over 2,500 it is 590 per 1,000. In the farm population of Wisconsin there are 1,072 children per 1,000 adults."

"Wisconsin's population (1920) shows the urban leading the farm and village population in the following proportion: Urban, 42.7 per cent; farm, 40.5 per cent; village, 16.7 per cent."

"As a result of neglect of religious services and training in rural communities, the old impact is rapidly disappearing and emotional lives are rapidly falling into unhealthy spiritual decay; the gap between city and country is widening; the city churches are getting more problems and fewer recruits to help them face their problems; and equal educational and governmental advantages are realized only in the degree that religious resources are supplied."

Washington—(P)—A demand upon Chinese authorities by the American legation at Peking for complete investigation of a bomb explosion in the Peking Union Medical college of Peking was relayed today to the state department.

The explosion occurred Wednesday and seriously injured a Chinese clerk employed by the college, which is supported by the Rockefeller Foundation.

The state department was informed two bombs were contained in a suit case left in the hospital waiting room two days previously. As the case was opened to determine its ownership, the legation said, one bomb went off, but the second failed to explode. Another unexploded bomb was found in a door-way.

The legation reported it believed the bombing was not directed against any individual, but was "intended as a demonstration against the institution."

A state department explanation said: "There has recently been much criticism, some of it in the Chinese press of the hospital for such well-known practices as transfusion of blood and autopsies which are believed by the masses to be in the nature of sorcery and this criticism may have been the means of provoking the bomb outrage on the part of some ignorant individual."

BADGER P. T. A. NAMES OFFICERS FOR 1930

Theodore Neuman was elected president of the Badger Rural School Parent Teachers association, town of Grand Chute, at the first meeting of the year held at the school Friday night. Arnold Schultz, teacher, was made vice president, and Mrs. Jack Taylor was re-elected secretary and treasurer. Mr. Schultz talked on his trip to Washington with the Outagamie-co rural graduates. Mrs. Jack Taylor was chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

URGE PUPILS TO BUY BOOKS BEFORE MONDAY

Copies of the booklist for the coming year may be obtained by Appleton high school students at the high school office, H. H. Holm, principle, urges all students to purchase their books before the opening of school at 8:10 Monday morning, so that classes may be run on regular schedule the first day.

Unregistered students, or those wishing to change their programs, should visit the high school office before noon on Saturday.

PERHAPS WAR WAS HELL, BUT WHAT ABOUT MARRIAGE?

Milwaukee—(P)—Sherman's definition of war may have been adequate for horrors of gunfire, but Lieut. Parke G. Young, 33, U. S. N., retired, today avowed that marriage holds terrors Sherman never heard of.

In his divorce suit against Mrs. Margaret A. Young, 33, Pomona, Calif., he charged that his wife celebrated a May day at his parents' summer home in northern Wisconsin by jabbing a lighted cigarette—fire end first—in his case. Later the same day, he said, she punched him with a fist and to climax the day's activities, she pushed him out of a Pullman upper berth on the trip home.

The fall, he said, knocked him unconscious.

LOCAL COMPANY GETS WAUSAU PAVING JOB

Garvey - Weyenberg Company to Complete Work on Highway 29

The Garvey-Weyenberg Construction company of this city, Friday was awarded the contract for paving a 10-mile addition to Highway 29 west of Wausau. The local firm submitted the low bid of $385,000, which includes cement.

The concern is now at work on a 14-mile stretch west of Wausau, having completed about 13 miles during the past few months. When the 10-mile addition is completed, the road between Appleton and Minneapolis will all be paved, according to members of the firm.

Eleven bridges are expected to be constructed, and the 10-mile stretch graded this fall. The addition will be paved next summer, it is reported.

Several stretches of the road will be relocated.

MAINE CAMPAIGN NEARS END TODAY

Voters to Elect U. S. Senator, Governor, Congressmen Next Monday

Portland, Me.—(P)—A lethargic campaign for national and state offices ended today as Maine's biennial "off year" election drew closer.

Voters next Monday will elect a United States senator, Governor, four congressmen and lesser state, county and community officers.

Big guns of the G. O. P. national battery, headed by Senator Simon D. Pess, chairman of the Republican national committee, unlimbered in behalf of their party candidates in a series of whirlwind tours over the state.

Likelihood that a reapportionment of congress would delete one seat in the house was seen by some observers as the reason for the concentration of Republican oratory. Arguments for retention of all G. O. P. seats in the national house and senate dominated the addresses.

Interest centered on the effort of Wallace H. White of Lewiston, Republican congressman from the second district for 11 years, to advance to the senate. He is opposed by Frank H. Haskell, Democrat, Portland attorney.

Edward C. Moran, Jr., Democrat who was defeated for governor two years ago, again opposes Governor William Tudor Gardner.

SCHNEIDER TO SPEAK AT POLITICAL MEETINGS

Congressman George J. Schneider left Saturday morning for Marinette and Wausau where he will give political addresses. Senator Robert M. LaFollette also will speak at the meetings. The meeting Saturday afternoon will be held at Wausau, while the session at Marinette will be held this evening.

AUTOMOBILE FIRE

The fire department answered a call to W. Seventh-st where an automobile owned by George Mader, became ignited from defective wiring. The blaze was extinguished by neighbors. The damage was slight.

WISCONSIN WEATHER

Mostly cloudy, probably showers in west portion tonight or Sunday and in east portion Sunday; slightly warmer tonight in northwest and north central part and in extreme east Sunday.

GENERAL WEATHER

Fair weather prevails generally over the entire country this morning, except for light scattered showers in the lower lakes, Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the western plains states. High pressure over Lake Superior has brought lower temperatures to the upper lakes and upper Mississippi valley, with frost reported from northern Minnesota. This is followed by low pressure over western Canada which is causing rising temperatures over the western states and cloudy and unsettled weather over the upper Missouri Valley. This "low" is expected to bring showers and warmer to this vicinity Sunday.

6,000 MORE BEDS ASSURED WAR VETERANS

12 Hospitals Under Construction and 19 Are in Process of Site Purchase

Washington—(P)—Twelve veterans hospitals under construction and 19 more in process of site purchase and contract letting will assure more than 6,000 beds additional for disabled war veterans in the not distant future.

All hospitals authorized under the fifth construction bill will be completed within six months. Work on the sixth construction bill, of December, 1929, a Christmas gift to the veterans, is well underway.

New hospitals on the program are:

Somerset, New Jersey, 421 beds, $1,950,000, neuropsychiatric, construction complete, ready for patients in October; Coatesville, Pa., 491 beds, neuropsychiatric, $1,700,000, construction complete, ready for patients in November; Lincoln, Nebraska, 138 beds, general hospital, $675,000, to be completed February, 1931; Hartford, Conn., 232 beds, general hospital, $1,000,000, to be completed January, 1931.

Additions and alterations to existing hospitals, are:

Hines, Illinois, 887 beds, general, $1,475,000; October, 1930; Fort Lyon, Colorado, 138 beds, neuropsychiatric, $300,000, November, 1930; Excelsior Springs, Missouri, 176 beds, general, $525,000, November, 1930; Aspinwall, Penn., 37 beds, and dining hall, tubular, $185,000, January, 1931; North Chicago, Ill., 303 beds, neuropsychiatric, $1,100,000, completed; Walter Reed, District of Columbia, neuropsychiatric, ward at war department hospital, 100 beds, $260,000, December, 1930.

Most of the 19 hospitals under the December bill have got as far as site-selection and drawing of plans. Bids have been asked for the construction of several.

STATE DIRECTORS PLAN CONVENTION

Heads of Wisconsin Chamber of Commerce Dine at Conway Hotel

Plans for the annual convention of the Wisconsin Chamber of Commerce were discussed by state chamber directors at a dinner meeting at Conway hotel, Friday afternoon. W. O. Thiede, local director of the state group, represented the local chamber.

Milwaukee was chosen for the 1930 convention city and tentative dates, Nov. 11 and 12 were set. Seventeen of the 30 members of the state board were in attendance. R. G. Kingsley, editor and publisher of the presided at the meeting.

It also was decided to push a string campaign for membership. Meetings are to be held in five districts of the state to further interest in organization. Plans for a special campaign to advertise the state's resources and advantages outside of Wisconsin, also were mapped out.

Committees are to be named by President Kingsley to arrange programs for the state convention. E. H. Krueger, secretary of the organization, with headquarters at Madison will assist with the work.

WET WEATHER ON MENU FOR WEEKEND

Wet weather is in store for this vicinity during the next 24 hours, according to predictions of the weatherman for Saturday night and Sunday.

The mercury is due for a rise over Saturday night, he says.

Winds are shifting in the south-east and east, a good indication that rough weather is on its way.

Snows and thunderstorms have been predicted throughout the mid-west.

At 6 o'clock Saturday morning the mercury registered 49 degrees above zero, while at noon is registered 75 degrees above.

TWO CARS DAMAGED ON W. COLLEGE-AVE

Automobiles driven by Bert Fird, Kimberley, and Miss Lorraine Filz, 1011 E. Water-ave, Appleton, were damaged about 4:30 Friday afternoon on W. PUSH COURT ACTION TO FIND TWO MEN

Former State Employees in Louisiana Missing Since Last Thursday

New Orleans—(P)—Court action to determine the whereabouts of Samuel Irby and James Terrell was pressed today despite information from Governor Huey P. Long that the two men were in the custody of Jefferson parish authorities for questioning regarding the rifling of state documents.

Governor Long in a speech in his campaign for the United States senate read a letter from the parish district attorney on the case and also telegrams purporting to come from Irby and Terrell, saying they were "all right," would not desire a legal fight for their release.

However, Jack Terrell, a brother of James, pointed out that he said there were discrepancies in one of the telegrams and announced his intention of proceeding with a writ of habeas corpus ordering the delivery of the men in Caddo district court.

Irby, former chemist for the state highway commission and Terrell, divorced husband of Governor Long's private secretary, were forcibly removed from a Shreveport hotel early Thursday by state officers, according to a report by the police of that city. They have not been seen since.

Irby, witness in a secret attorney general's highway department inquiry, had announced his intention of filing a $50,000 damage suit against Governor Long and O. K. Allen, highway chairman, for allegedly slanderous utterances made against him to his wife.

Governor Long in his speech disclaimed responsibility for the removal of Irby and Terrell saying the district attorney's letter was his source of information.

ABSENT VOTERS MAY NOW SECURE BALLOTS

Primary election and absent voter ballots were sent out Saturday by John E. Hantschel county clerk. There are 30,000 official ballots and 3,000 absentee ballots.

Voters who expect to be absent from their precincts on Sept. 16, may secure ballots from town, city, or village clerks or from the county clerk up to and including Monday. Voters who are ill should secure ballots immediately and get them in at least three days before election.

CLAIMS DEATH RATE IS LOWERED DURING DEPRESSION PERIOD

President of Casket Company Says Hard Times Hit Undertakers Also

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
New York. (C. P. A.) — F. B. Heintz, president of the National Casket company, tosses out a bit of bad news which, incidentally, has a silver lining and stirs up a novel dog-days argument.

President Heintz says things aren't so good in his line because mortality rates are always lower in hard times and that the "burial goods industry" suffers accordingly. A check on current vital statistics in New York and elsewhere shows that President Heintz is correct in his facts, if not in his deductions as to the casual relations of business, depression and long life.

From the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, the New York Department of Public Health and other sources it was learned today that mortality rates have been lower since the stock market crash last November. Last week's mortality rate for New York City was 8.90 for each 1,000 of population as against an average of 9.08 for the corresponding week over a period of six years. Previous weekly reports have disclosed a uniformly lower rate.

Here the official and professional sanctions of President Heintz's statement end. It was assumed that possibly, in a pinch, the populace might cut down on bath tub gin, over-eating and unhealthy indulgence in general and thus lengthen its days. Little support can be found for this theory. Some doctors hesitantly admit that a somewhat better public health regime might be induced by a tightening of the belt, but, on the whole, it is regarded as extremely unlikely. Physicians at the New York Academy of Medicine explained cycles of public health as operating over long periods, independent of economic disturbances far above the level of malnutrition.

They knew of no detailed and scientific investigation which would substantiate or disprove Mr. Heintz's assertion, which was as follows: "Any general business depression in the country invariably reflects itself in the burial goods industry to a considerable degree, in that lower priced products are demanded. Nature would also seem to play its part in it, for almost invariably in any depressed period, the mortality rate is lower than in years of plenty and good general business."

"This statement is absolutely unsupported," said Dr. L. I. Dublin, nationally known statistician and author of many works on vital statistics. Dr. Dublin, who is head statistician for the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, reported that mortality rates were actually lower during the last year, but emphatically denied their connection with the business depression.

"There has been a steady advance in public health and in the general public living regime," he said. "People are using more intelligence in their diet and exercise."

DISPROVE THEORY
"Diseases like diphtheria and measles are being overcome. Death rates are not due to single causes. The whole wide field of combating disease must be taken into account, and the obvious fact that people are not starving to death, or even suffering from malnutrition, is enough to disprove the assertion that the improved mortality rate—the best we have ever had—has anything to do with hard times."

Dr. Charles Bolduan, of the New York Department of Health, denied that the improved mortality rate was in any way linked with economic conditions.

"If President Heintz can support his statement that there are fewer deaths in times of depression, there is an obvious explanation," he said. "Naturally, a period of depression follows a period of prosperity and during the former period the population is enjoying the accumulated benefits of an economic surplus for food, medication, good housing and all the other factors of good health. As a whole, this country lives far above the level of economic pressure sufficient to reflect itself in such diseases as malnutrition and tuberculosis. We are, indeed, making a much better showing in public health and can claim a saving of life by such public activities as disinfecting and vaccination. The explanation of the better mortality rate lies in official, institutional, and profes-

BEBE DANIELS IN SOUTHERN OPERETTA

Critic Lists Newest Talkie as "So-so" Entertainment

BY JOHN S. COHEN JR.
Motion Picture Critic of New York Sun

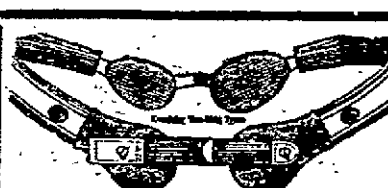

New York. (CPA)—Bebe Daniels and the R-K-O. Movie corporation go southern in "Dixiana," a somewhat old-fashioned operetta, now at the globe. It is fusciously crinolined, fairly melodious with tunes by the Henry Tierney, who wrote "Irene," "Kid Boots" and "Rio Rita," and rather well sung by Miss Daniels and Everett Marshall, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera company.

Yet in its final effect it is only so-so as entertainment, the rather stilted musical show lines and plot overthrowing the illusion that might have been created.

Here it is, the old New Orleans of musical comedy, and Miss Daniels is a singer in a local hippodrome who is taken by a young blood to his plantation—there to be married. She meets all the folks, represented by the amusing Jobyna Howland and Joseph Cawthorn, and there is a big separation when the family finds out that Dixiana is just a nobody from a circus.

It is that sort of musical show plot. It goes on, too, to show Miss Daniels, who had nobly effaced herself personal advance, as well as the rise in public health intelligence. Wall Street lists and keeps tab on National Casket company stock, but it doesn't want to talk about it at all. This is one stock in which there has never been a pool or underground manipulation of any kind. Wall Street is superstitious and is content to let this stock ride on its merits.

REDUCE RATES ON BADGER POTATOES

Crop May Be Sent to Kentucky Points at Much Lower Figure

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington.—Reductions ranging from 2.5 cents to 15 cents per 100 pounds will be made in the rates on potatoes shipped from all Wisconsin points to Kentucky destinations if the Interstate Commerce Commission accepts the report proposed by Examiner C. J. Peterson.

The D. B. Ryan Company of Minneapolis complained to the Commission that rates charged for the transportation of potatoes from all points in Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, to Kentucky destinations were unreasonable and unduly prejudicial. Examiner Peterson, in his report, upholds the charge of unreasonableness to Frankfort, Richmond, Berea, Carlisle, Lawrenceburg and Mt. Sterling, Ky. Prescribes reasonable rates for the future to those points and recommends an award of reparation on past shipments, but dismisses the charge of undue prejudice and finds the present rates to Lexington, Paris, Winchester and Georgetown, Ky., to be reasonable.

Waupaca is considered a representative point among the Wisconsin origins. The following table shows the present rates from Waupaca to the Kentucky destinations and the rates recommended by Examiner Peterson:

To Frankfort, now 57.5 cents; future, 55.5 cents;	To Lexington, now 57.5 cents; future, 55.5 cents;
To Richmond, now 67 cents; future, 56.5 cents;	To Berea, now 67 cents; future, 56.5 cents;
To Carlisle, now 61.5 cents; future, 57.5 cents;	To Lawrenceburg, now 57.5 cents; future, 55.5 cents;
To Mt. Sterling, now 71.5 cents; future, 56.5 cents.

Kentucky destinations to which the present rates were found reasonable are Lexington, 55.5 cents; Paris, 55.5 cents; Winchester, 55.5 cents, and Georgetown, 55.5 cents.

Present rates from Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota origins, which will be reduced similarly to Wisconsin under the proposed report, are all higher than the Wisconsin rates.

Taking the Princeton-Cambridge group in Minnesota as representative of that state, the rate is about 5.5 cents per 100 pounds higher than the Wisconsin rate. The Princeton-Cambridge group is a triangular area extending about 60 miles north and

MARRIAGE LICENSES AGAIN SHOW DECREASE

There were 52 marriage licenses issued by John E. Hantschel, county clerk, during August compared with 55 licenses issued in the same month in 1929. This drop in licenses in August continues the record made so far this year. The number of licenses issued every month in 1930 has been below the number issued in the same month in 1929. Up to the end of August a total of 247 licenses were issued by Mr. Hantschel, or 50 less than in five same periods in 1929 when there were 297 licenses issued.

northwest of Minneapolis. Grand Forks, representative of North Dakota, has a rate 19 cents higher than the Waupaca rate and Aberdeen in South Dakota is 20.5 cents higher. The rates proposed by Examiner Peterson would maintain the present rate relationship between Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr. URGES THE RE-ELECTION OF Congressman Geo. J. Schneider

"Upon his record of faithful and intelligent service to the men and women of the Ninth Congressional District, George Schneider deserves to be renominated and re-elected.

"A member of organized labor, he knows the problems of the worker and on the Committee of Immigration of the House he has performed valuable service to the men and women wage earners of his district and the country.

"He has made a study of the agricultural problem. He has supported the genuine farm relief measures fought for at Washington by the Progressives. He voted against the Grundy-Hoover tariff bill on final passage in the House because it was an outrageous betrayal of the farmers.

"Without disparaging any other candidate who may be seeking the nomination I appeal to the Progressives of the Ninth District not to split their vote. I urge them to renominate Congressman Schneider by the smashing majority which his record of public service so richly deserves."

GERARD'S RULERS
It has been a long time since any man started quite such a turmoil of public discussion as James W. Gerard did when he loosed a statement declaring that some three-score industrial and financial big shots are the real rulers of this country. Judging from published comments, Mr. Gerard may have failed to convince very many people, but he, at least set them talking, and since at least a few of the talkers stopped to do some thinking as well, we must give Mr. Gerard credit for having performed a public service.
Mr. Gerard's proposition is interesting, and on the surface seems to have a good deal of justification. But it is possible to go a long way in agreement with him without losing one's faith in ultimate triumph of American democracy. What he says, in substance, is simply this: That political leaders are not the real sources of power in America, since they "take their orders," knowingly or otherwise, from the men behind the scenes; and that these orders come from men like Morgan, Ford, Rockefeller and Mellon, who are, consequently, the "real rulers" of the country.
There is not much question that the Morgans and Rockefellers have things pretty much their own way. Big business has its hands on most of the strings. Taken by and large, it gets what it wants. But there are one or two things to remember. First of all, big business occasionally gets rebuffed. The railroads do not always have their own way with the Interstate Commerce commission. The oil men have not been able to get permission to ration out oil production as they would like. The power industry certainly did not welcome the recent "propaganda" investigation, nor has it yet been able to get Muscle Shoals.
More important, however, is the fact that the governmental framework set up after the revolution is still intact. Each citizen still has a vote. In theory, at least, the government is still able to do just about as it pleases, regardless of the attitude of the business world. What it comes down to, then, is this: Big industrial and financial leaders exercise vast power over America because the voters, for the present, are willing that they should do so. The American people believe that in the long run they will be the gainers if the Morgans and Fords are given a fairly free hand. The Morgans and Fords, then, have power—but it is only a loan. The people have the power to call that loan whenever they want to. The machinery of democracy is still in the right hands. Mr. Gerard's 60 big shots may be our rulers—for the present. But they rule only on sufferance.
UNREST IN SOUTH AMERICA
Political conditions in South America have been stable for a good many years; consequently it is more than ordinarily discouraging to read of revolts, threatened or actual, in two countries at the same time.
In Peru the revolt seems to be an established fact, and there is more than an even chance—judging from the cables—that the deposed president, Leguia, will suffer in the traditional Latin-American way.
Just at present it is not quite clear what is happening in Argentina, but it is quite evident that there is a very menacing situation for the government there. Argentina has generally been considered the foremost nation in South America, judged by our own standards; it is dismaying to see it lapsing into the habit of armed revolt.
Fortunately, there is no indication that our own government will be required to take any action in either of these cases. Peru and Argentina, after all, are not Nicaragua. Our marines can stay north of the equator.

PREPARING FOR THE FUTURE
Cities, when they die, are likely to die from hardening of the arteries. Thoroughfares, adequate in their time, restrict traffic, impede circulation of the city's life blood, bringing decay and death which often might have been avoided. Paris was in that condition four generations ago. Napoleon rejuvenated the old capital by tearing down buildings, widening streets and cutting new thoroughfares, radiating in many directions from points of interest and congested centers. Around the whole he threw a magnificent system of boulevards.
But Paris grew, and motor traffic came, and again its free circulation was restricted. Now the department of the Seine, which controls the capital as congress controls our District of Columbia, is embarking on a big five-year program of improvements to cost $40,000,000. The arteries connecting city and country are to be re-widened. New roads are to be built. Bridges are to be reconstructed. Dangerous crossings are to be eliminated. Suburbs will be connected better with the city and with each other. There will be another belt-boulevard. Thus Paris may continue to live, grow and function for another century.
Every growing city in America faces the same problem. It is as important in a small city as in a great one. How many of our cities are dealing with it adequately? How many have a comprehensive, well-engineered plan, guaranteeing that future growth will be provided for when it comes, without costly tearing down?
THE SPECTATORS' DANGER
The tragic accident to Lieutenant De Shazo's plane at the Chicago air races emphasizes once more a point in connection with shows of that kind that we often tend to overlook—the fact that there is apt to be a certain element of danger to the spectators in thrilling stunt-maneuvers performed over a huge crowd.
Fortunately, De Shazo's tragedy cost only two lives. Reports from the field, however, indicate that a catastrophe of much larger proportions was averted only by a narrow margin; and that fact ought to stand as a warning to the officials of future air shows.
The magnificent skill of the army and navy flyers, and the splendid construction of the planes they fly, are the spectators' only guarantee of safety. Stunt flying is perhaps the most exhilarating spectacle there is; but it will be in the highest degree lamentable if any show such as this in Chicago is ever spoiled by a disabled airplane plunging into a crowd.
NEEDED: A GOOD PRESS AGENT
It is getting harder every day to read those long-drawn reports from the vicinity of Los Angeles about the adventures, misadventures and whatnot of Aimee Semple McPherson and her mother.
At first the stories were interesting, and then they became mildly amusing. Now they are only boring, in the last degree. A good many citizens, beyond doubt, are reaching the point where they would be quite content never to read another line about these two ladies.
One thing does stand out; Aimee and her mother need a public relations counsel. No press agent worth his salt would ever allow the two of them to get involved in publicity of the kind they have been getting lately.
The first rivless cargo vessel, a 2,500-barrel tanker fabricated entirely by the arc-welding method, has been launched in Charleston, S. C. Nine workmen only were employed in building the boat.

About New York
BY RICHARD MASSOCK
Paris—City of types—that's Paris.
Here, for instance, one can see more beads in a block than in any old men's home in America.
From the boulevardiers to the flics, or cops, everybody falls into some group. And this is supposed to be a city of unconventionality.
Beginning with the boulevardiers, we see the old dandies of a dying day. A little flabby now, with sagging wrinkles under their eyes—but with dapper clothes, a boutonniere, a stick and a bright eye for the passing girls.
AND MORE OF THEM
Away from the grand boulevards different types appear.
Montparnasse, on the Left Bank, offers perhaps the biggest assortment of freaks. Long-haired men and short-haired women, who came in after the war and stayed, are at its cafe tables.
A few carry portfolios of sketches, to make sure that wide-eyed tourists will recognize them as artists. Others rely upon idiosyncrasies of dress. Flowing ties, shirts open at the throat, sandals, black hats with broad brims, fringed beads making a half-moon of young chins—various tricks such as these have replaced the velvet pantaloons of the old Bohemian in the Latin quarter.
The tourists in plus-fours, sometimes in evening clothes, laugh at them and they superciliously smile back. So everybody has a part in the show and should be happy.
The girls of Paris are of a type, too. After a few days they all look alike. Surely they all dress alike, in black, which is more unobtrusive than their manner.
Even the bourgeois Parisians, the middle class, who seldom frequent the tourist parts of town, but live their own quiet family life, are easily recognizable, because of their very conventional attire in dress and manner.
The Americans? Ah, anyone, Parisian or foreigner, can pick one out a block away. And a lucky thing it is, too, sometimes when one is lonesome or gets into a jam with a language that calls a look a "blow of the eye."
Then there are the expatriates, those who have remained to live in La Belle France, but can't seem to settle down.
This is a city of manana, where it is all too easy to put off until tomorrow and sit instead at a sidewalk table and sip coffee.
FAMED WHISKIES
Now for the flics. They got their nickname from the Apaches (who no longer exist, I understand).
When the cops, or sergeants de ville, used to appear, the gangsters would shout "flic!" to warn their companions. It was a short and meaningful word, similar to the American "beat it!"
On the genial face of the flic at Porte St. Denis is what seems to be the longest beard in Paris. It is a reddish brown and divides into two magnificent points that brush the buttons on his chest every time he blows his whistle.
He has been popularly designated as the mascot of Paris, and his name is his set of whiskers, that a shoe repair shop has a life-size figure of him at its door, holding aloft his white baton with the admonition, "Stop here."

Seen And Heard In New York
BY RICHARD MASSOCK
New York—Murder sites, morbid curiosity being what it is, are hot stuff for the rubberneck guides.
A season ago the megaphone artists of the sightseeing busses were pointing out if not the site of the Albert Snyder bludgeoning, at least the restaurant where Judd Gray and Ruth Snyder began the flirtation that carried them to the electric chair.
This year they have added to their itinerary of places once marked in the newspaper diagrams with the familiar cross of tragedy the hotel from which Arnold Rothstein staggered with a mortal bullet in his side.
MYSTERY LINGERS
Mystery is the element that keeps the memory of a murder alive in the public mind.
Curiosity feeds on conjectures as to just what happened behind a certain innocent facade. Yet, even so, there comes a time when a house of murder either is forgotten, or disappears.
What, then, are some of the sites of famous murders like now?
The shades are drawn over the windows of the top floor apartment in a five-story building on West Fifty-seventh street where Dorothy King, the Broadway butterfly, was shot. The color of the door is still faint between her cold lips on a morning of 1923.
A sign outside her advertisements "apartments for rent." Maybe the mystery apartment is one of them.
Then there is the address where another Broadway beauty, Louise Lawson, was found suffocated under similar mystifying circumstances just about a year later. It was at 22 West Seventy-second street, now obliterated by a huge apartment house.
A few blocks away, at 244 West Seventy-third street, is the former home of Joseph Brown Elwell, whose death is one of the most famous of the world's unsolved crimes.
Whether Elwell, wealthy bridge expert and clubman, was shot for love or hate or robbery, probably nobody knows but the man or woman who performed the deed in 1920 and left no clue. A dingy rooming house now, it too advertises "vacancies."
HONEYMOON HOUSE
In the same general neighborhood, at 257 West End avenue, is an even older building of one-time interest. It was the honeymoon house of Roland Molineaux and his bride, Blanche Chesebrough (the Gibson girl), whose names are in the anthologies of major crimes.
Molineaux found himself a police suspect after the deaths by poison of Henry C. Barnett, a broker, who had been a rival for Miss Chesebrough's affections, and of a Mrs. Adams.
In the case of Mrs. Adams, she had swallowed a fatal draught of snake venom. The order received through the mails by a roomer, Harry Cornish, with whom Molineaux had had differences at their club. All of this was early in the present century.
Molineaux finally was acquitted after a retrial, following 23 months' imprisonment in Sing Sing. From his experience, Molineaux wrote a death house play, "The Man Inside," which was one of the Broadway failures of 1914. A few years later he died in an insane asylum.
The honeymoon house for years was vacant. Only recently, its story forgotten, has it had tenants.
The Tynmites
By Hal Cochran
THEIR ride was quite a pleasant one and everyone had heaps of fun. At one time Cloway almost lost the bunch off of the road. In driving he forgot to steer, and just when trouble loomed right near, somebody grabbed hold of the reins and saved the frightened load.
Along the highway they soon found some youngsters hiking over the ground. On each one's shoulder was a sack. "What's in those?" Cloway cried. One of the boys said, "Well, jump out and see what they are all about. No fooling, if you do we'll let you take a peek inside." The fellow answered, "I am game," and right up the boys he came. One opened up his sack and Cloway cried, "They're melons. Gee! They surely look real fit to eat and I'll bet every bite's a treat." This boy replied, "Well help yourselves! This little treat's on me."
The Tynites did and, oh, how good! They ate just what they thought they should and then they thanked the kindly boys and said, "Come, have a ride. I'll save you walking down the road. Our cart will hold all of this stuff." They traveled on for miles and miles, all sitting side by side.
The two boys then said, "We'll get out because our house is just about a mile back off this roadway here and we are due at home." The next thing that the Tynites saw filled every single one with awe. How strange are things you often see, wherever you may roam!
This was a little girl and she seemed just as happy as could be despite the fact that on her head a monstrous basket stood. But they were not surprised over that. Inside a little baby sat. That's what amused the Tynites. One said, "Gee, that baby's good!"
(The Tynmites land in a new country in the next story.)
SPEED AND NOISE DRIVING US MAD
Paris.—Demons of speed and din are driving man mad, in the opinion of Dr. Henri Laugier, eminent scientist and one of the leading psychiatrists of France.
"Modern life, particularly in big cities with their crowds, noise and preponderance of artificial excitement and stimulants, is not conducive to serenity of mind," he says. "It is too agitating, too destructive to the nervous system."
"Our pace has been so accelerated and science has advanced in such haphazard fashion that the minds of mankind have not been able to catch up. We hurtle through underground subways and overhead in airplanes. And the speed age never ceases to take its toll!"

THE TIME IT TAKES TO HAVE YOUR TONSILS OUT
A southern throat specialist who is skilled in the diathermy extirpation of tonsils reports the cast of a bed ridden woman of 64 years who had his apparatus conveyed to her bedside and did an extensive coagulation in one sitting. The patient did not miss a meal. The entire tonsillar area was cleaned up by the coagulation and the patient improved rapidly thereafter. This, mind, you from one treatment, lasting, I suppose, a few minutes.
A physician in a mid western city, evidently not frightened by the frowns of the would-be medical Musolins describing his preference for electro-decathion rather than electro-coagulation where the former, if applicable, says that with the low amperage used by electro-decathion more of the tonsil can be treated at one sitting....it is even possible to remove both tonsils at one sitting if they are small, and to "touch up" any overlooked remnants of tonsil tissue ten days later. It is better, however, to give two treatments.
Today's Anniversary
SHOOTING OF MCKINLEY
On Sept. 6, 1901, President McKinley, while attending a public reception at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, was shot by an assassin, one Leon Czolgosz.
On the day preceding, the president had delivered an address on commercial reciprocity among the various nations and it was believed he was soon to propose a policy in this connection, which might have made his second administration fully as momentous as his first.
The surgeons who were summoned operated almost immediately on the wounded president, and thus made possible the fight for life which was then carried on. There seemed to be some hope he would pull through, but on Friday the 13th he took a turn for the worse and died the following day. The actual end came suddenly and made a profound impression both in this country and abroad.
McKinley's body lay in state in the Capitol at Washington on the 17th and then taken to his home city, Canton, O., for burial. In his message to Congress, Dec. 3, 1901, President Roosevelt declared, "It is not too much to say that at the time of President McKinley's death he was the most widely loved man in the United States."
BARBS
From the beauty specialist convention in Chicago comes the news that the average family spends $90 a year on cosmetics and beauty treatments. Money well invested when you consider those who use them often feel they look like a million dollars.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON
BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington—One day the latter part of last October word went around among newspapermen that "Old George" Norris had a statement to his office on the hill they went in great numbers. There they were handed a lengthy typewritten document, signed by the veteran Nebraska independent. In brief, it contained this message:
"I have been forced to lay aside a desire to retire from public life by a challenge against myself and my principals of government."
Norris has now met that challenge and emerged victorious. His success in the Nebraska primary is heralded as decisive and complete in every sense.
There are those in Washington who will tell you that "Old George" is not particularly concerned about what happens in the future. It is their belief that deep down in his heart he feels he has won his fight—that even if he is not returned to the senate in the general election this fall he will not feel so bad.
IN BY SUPPRESSION
It is no secret that he has long wanted to retire. Some say that he is in now simply because someone suppressed his telegram refusing to become a candidate in 1924.
He has one real ambition yet to achieve, and that is to be governor of Nebraska.
Long has he dreamed of re-making the government of his state into a model for others—a government of a model of a small single chamber legislature—a sort of state council elected non-partisanly and capable of doing business.
"Old George" cares nothing for the emoluments that go with the office of senator.
He has never sought the social position that is his for the asking by virtue of his rank.
He looks with disdain upon the so-called senatorial tea parties. He lives a simple and, to what appears to an observer, one of the loneliest lives of any member of the senate.
He has had many disappointments during his long service in the senate. Often they have made him downcast. He is a comparatively poor man.
But he forever is seeking new fields of service.
NEVER BOMBASTIC
Plain, unimpressive, in appearance, he is nothing like the man one would expect him to be. His hair is white and eyebrows dark. The little black bow tie that he always wears only accentuates the mildness of his face.
His speeches are never delivered in bombastic fashion, but rather in a conversational tone. What he says appears twice as potent when seen on paper than when heard on the floor of the senate.
The only form of diversion he remembers ever engaging in was corn shucking. Once he was the star corn shucker of his community.

Painting Is To Be Studied By Delphians

RENAISSANCE PAINTING is the general topic for study by the Alpha Delphina chapter for this year, according to the notices sent out by the national Delphian society. The local group will devote the first five months to the study of the Italian Renaissance and during the second five months will take up the Flemish, German, Dutch, French, and supplementary subjects.

Mrs. Ray Hauert was the leader at the meeting Friday afternoon at the Woman's club, on the general subject of the Italian Renaissance. Mrs. R. N. Clapp gave Elements of Visual Beauty, Mrs. H. L. Davis presented the topic, Ancient Painting, and Mrs. Roy Davis gave a paper on Byzantine Painting. The Italian Revival was discussed by Mrs. J. De Baurer.

The next meeting of the chapter will be on Sept. 19. Giotto and His Age will be the topic for study and the members will take up the work of this great artist at this time. Alpha Delphian chapter, which was organized a year ago, holds its meetings every two weeks at the Woman's club.

PLAN PROGRAM ON LANDING DAY

Arrangements for a Landing Day program to be held Oct. 12 were made at the meeting of Knights of Columbus Thursday night at Catholic home. The celebration will be held jointly by the councils of Appleton, Kaukauna, Neenah and Menasha.

John Schneider, chairman of the building committee, reported that the building is now well on its way. A talk was given by Adolph Guyer, president of the Civic Council, on the Community Chest.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

The Senior Luther League of First English Lutheran church will hold a special meeting Tuesday evening at the church to elect delegates to the convention of Associated Luther Leagues of Wisconsin which will be held at Oshkosh Sept. 13 and 14. The convention of Women's Missionary society will also be held at Oshkosh on Sept. 17.

The reading circle of Women's Missionary society of First English Lutheran church met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. John Mielke, 1818 Pacific. The Augsburg-Confession was read.

The Junior Luther League of First English Lutheran church will meet at 7:30 Monday night at the church. Regular business will be transacted and plans will be made for the coming fall. A social hour will follow.

Chapter B of Trinity English Lutheran church will start its fall meetings at 7:30 Monday night at the home of Mrs. William Mignon, 1818 W. Spencer. This will be a business and social meeting.

Mrs. J. R. Denyes will present the topic, India, at the meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of First Methodist church at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the church. The work for the coming year will be built around India. The mission tea will be served at 6 o'clock and the official board will meet at 7 o'clock.

The Sacred Heart society of Sacred Heart church will meet at 1:30 Sunday afternoon at the parish hall. Routine business will be discussed.

The choir of Trinity English Lutheran church held a business meeting Thursday night at the church. A social hour was held after the meeting. The choir will meet again for business the first Thursday in October.

Baptist Young People's Union of First Baptist church will hold a devotional meeting at 6:30 Sunday night at the church. The Fellowship commission will be in charge.

Chapters T and M of Trinity English Lutheran church will meet at 7:30 Monday night at the home of Mrs. Fred Ernst, 714 E. Franklin. The fall work will begin at this time.

CARD PARTIES

The Young Ladies sodality of St. Joseph church will sponsor a bridge party at 8 o'clock Monday night in the parish hall. This is the first of a series. Miss Cecile Haag is chairman of the committee in charge.

Eleven tables were in play at the card party sponsored by Christian Mothers society of St. Mary church Friday afternoon at Columbia hall. Prizes at schafkopf were won by Mrs. K. Henry and Mrs. L. Weber, and at bridge by Mrs. Wenzel Hoffman and Mrs. Joseph H. Vandenberg. Mrs. Ed Morrow and Mrs. T. J. Long were in charge.

Next week a series of parties will begin with Mrs. John Butler and her group in charge of the first.

WEDDINGS

The marriage of Frances Janke, 1304 W. Packard, to Raymond Lewis, son of Mrs. Alvin Lewis, 1019 W. Packard, took place Tuesday morning at Waukegan, Ill. Mrs. Richard Bosser and Henry Lewis, sister and brother of the bridegroom, acted as attendants. The couple left on a trip to Long Island, N. Y., and on their return will make their home on Lorain.

Modish Peplum

BY ANNABELLE WORTHINGTON

It's up to the minute. The peplum enters the junior mode in school frock of patterned wool crepe in Bordeaux red tones. It gives emphasis to the demure, basque bodice, with eggshell shade linen Peter Pan collar accented by black bow tie.

The circular skirt displays a comfortably full hemline.

It offers such a smart change to wardrobe of little miss of 8, 10, 12 and 14 years in which Style No. 2704 may be had.

It's fetching in navy blue wool crepe with the peplum collar and cuffs showing vivid red faille crepe bindings, which shade is repeated in bow tie.

Bottle green wool jersey with yellow beige pique collar and cuffs is unusually attractive.

Size 8 requires 2 1/2 yards 39-inch material with 1 yard 39-inch contrasting and 3/4 yards binding.

Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Be sure to fill in size of pattern. Address: Pattern Department. Send 10c to save $10. How? By ordering a copy of our new Fall and Winter Fashions. It gives the answer to the often asked question, "How does she do it?" For it shows how to dress up to the minute at little expense. You can save on every dress and save on the children's clothes too. That means more and better frocks for you and yours. Order your copy now. Just enclose 10c in stamps or coin and mail with your name and address to Fashion Department.

Mrs. B. Hagen will be hostess to the Phi Mu Alumnae club at her home, 413 E. North-st., Monday evening. Final plans for the fall rushing program will be made.

FEAR FOR HEALTH OF DEPOSED PRESIDENT

Lima (P)—Fears are entertained for the grave state of health of the deposed president, Augusto B. Leguia. His son, Juan, denies that he has been given medical attention in his cell in San Lorenzo prison.

Newspapermen attempting to interview him have been told that he is uncommunicative and will be removed soon to the national penitentiary at Lima.

DR. HOLMES IS BACK FROM MEET

Dr. J. A. Holmes, pastor of First Methodist church, has returned from the annual Methodist conference which was held during the past week at Hartford, and will preach at the Sunday services. This will be his tenth year as pastor of the local church. Among the others who attended from Appleton were Dr. Richard Evans, district superintendent, and Dr. J. E. Denyes.

At the conference Appleton was chosen over three other cities for next year's meeting, other invitations having been received from Kenosha, Sheboygan, and Camp Byron. It is expected that the conference next year will bring a larger number of delegates than usual, probably around 500 people. The ministers will be housed at the dormitories at Lawrence college.

PARTIES

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cummings, Grand Chute, celebrated their sixteenth wedding anniversary Tuesday evening. A chicken dinner was served after which music, dancing, and songs provided the entertainment. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. M. Maloney, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hart, Edward Hart, Jr., and Carol Hart, Duluth, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Cummings, the Misses Grace and Mary Jane Cummings, New London; Mr. and Mrs. William Cummings and children, Ursula, William, Jr., Mary Agnes, and Frances, Stephenville; and Jerry Crowe, Appleton.

Mrs. C. B. Clark, Neenah, was hostess at a dinner dance Friday evening at Riverview Country club in honor of Mr. Clark's birthday anniversary. About 100 guests were present. Music for dancing was provided by Bob Timm's orchestra, Milwaukee. The club was decorated with huge baskets of gladioli, larkspur, and ferns, the color scheme being carried out in yellow.

Miss Estelle Reid, Appleton, entertained 45 guests at dinner and bridge Wednesday night at Riverview Country club. Prizes at bridge were won by Mrs. William Van Nortwick, Frank Young, Mrs. J. E. Thomas, and J. F. King.

Mrs. Arthur Nickels, 513 N. Clark-st., entertained at a miscellaneous shower Friday evening at her home in honor of her sister, Mrs. 1218 N. Union-st., Thursday evening. Mrs. Schneider was Miss Viola Robe before her marriage, Aug. 26. Prizes at cards were won by Miss Laura Wermer, Mrs. Ed Knaack, Mrs. Albert Wagner, and Mrs. Otto Buss.

Miss Barbara Hopfensperger entertained at bridge Friday evening at Candle Glow tea room in honor of her sister, Louise, who left Saturday morning for Sinsinawa to resume her studies. Prizes were won by Miss Beatrice Robles and Miss Louise Hopfensperger, and Miss Emily Dachelet was awarded a special prize. Eight guests were present.

A farewell party was given Friday night in honor of Mrs. Ole Johnson at her home 123 S. Douglas-st. She will move into her new home the first of next week. Those present were Mrs. Orin Feely, Mrs. F. J. Cooney, Mrs. Albert Hansen, Mrs. Betty Langdon, Mrs. Louise Hintz, Miss Edith Cooney, Mrs. A. B. Skibba and mother, and Mrs. A. Schultz. Mrs. Johnson was presented with a bridge lamp for her new home.

The Bluebird Sunday school class of Emanuel Evangelical church entertained at a farewell party Friday night for Miss Adeline Wink at her home on W. Wisconsin-ave. Ten guests were present, and games and music provided the entertainment. Miss Wink will leave Sunday to enter nurse's training at Bellin Memorial hospital, Green Bay.

LOCAL PASTORS TO GO TO MEETING

Several Appleton pastors will attend the monthly one-day Lutheran conference to be held Tuesday at Greenville Lutheran church. Those who will go include the Rev. R. E. Ziesemer, of Mt. Olive Lutheran church, the Rev. F. M. Brandt, and the Rev. T. J. Sauer, of St. Paul Lutheran church. St. Matthew church also belongs to this conference. Various phases of religious work will be discussed at the meeting.

BULLETIN BOARD IS ERECTED AT CHURCH

A bulletin board designed and built by Seymour Gmeliner of the Appleton Wood Products company has been erected on the lawn of All Saints Episcopal church. The board, which will be electrically lighted, will carry the announcements and meetings of the church as well as items of interests to the community.

If you use paper to protect your pantry shelves use three thicknesses. It is as easy to cut three as one layer and one layer at a time may be removed when soiled.

Crushed rhubarb rubbed over hands stained by fruit when preserving will remove stains.

Wool that has been knitted and ripped out may be made to look like new if treated as follows: Fill a pot or kettle with water, and let it get very hot. Place a towel in a colander, nest the yarn on the towel and cover with ends of towel. Place all over the kettle of hot water and steam until the wool is fluffy.

You will have very light and flaky mashed potatoes if you add a teaspoon of baking powder with the milk in mashing them.

Cream should be cold when whipped. Heavy or double cream is quickly whipped and should not be beaten a minute too long.

If a pinch of baking soda is added to the water in which string beans are cooked it will preserve their color and make them tender.

Raisins may be quickly and easily stoned if boiling water is poured over them and allowed to remain over night.

Use new rubber rings always on preserve jars. An old ring is often responsible for fruits or vegetables fermenting.

When paraffining jellies and jams use a small teapot to melt paraffine in and pour onto jellies.

TWO BIRTHDAYS ARE CELEBRATED

Two birthdays were celebrated at the meeting of Women's Relief Corps, Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, Friday afternoon at Elk hall. Mrs. Thad Shreiner, Neenah, national delegate to the recent convention was present and gave a report. Mrs. Gear, Menasha, was a visitor at the meeting. Thirty-three members and eight comrades were present.

The luncheon committee included Mrs. Cora Reese, chairman; Mrs. Amanda Pfeil, Mrs. Alice Ralph, Mrs. Alice Packard, Mrs. Carrie McCarter, and Mrs. Grace Braun.

Hints For The Shopper

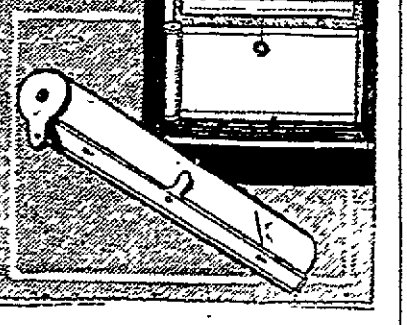

To buy a Turkish towel simply because it looks good is to open the way to bad buying. Good appearance certainly is to be desired, but when this is a towel's only virtue, then it is a poor bargain.

A Turkish towel must have capacity to absorb water. The speed of absorption is one of the determining factors of quality. And yet there are towels a bit cheaper than the better grades—which take five times longer to absorb water than those which cost a few cents more.

Other points to be noted are its tensile strength and the ease with which the weave can be pulled apart; the easier the pulling, the poorer the quality.

Have You Heard —

Especially practical for fall and winter is a new ventilator that will cut rain and snow, and abolish drafts at the same time that it permits a steady stream of fresh air to enter the room. When not in use the screen rolls up and vanishes. Ventilators come in white ivory, green, mahogany and blue. Refresh screens of preshrunk linen are also available.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE picture of her shining yellow slippers bobbing merrily out to sea restored Corinne's sense of humor. She sat and watched them, wonderingly, until they were out of sight.

Then she looked up at the lighted hotel, which seemed to swing into the velvet darkness like a mystery ship. She looked up and down the beach but there was no one near.

The evening, as she knew, would grow gray instead of quieter, and more and more people would come. Meantime, she couldn't very well cross the veranda and the lobby in her stocking feet.

But after all she hadn't done anything but lose a pair of slippers. She picked up her skirts and started across the sand and up the walk.

"Your slippers" Corinne Becker, what happened? Gratefully she recognized the voice of the girl who had tried to coax her to do something with a group that afternoon. "Serves you right for not looking us up after lunch."

"I forgot. I had a date...." She said it unthinkingly, not even realizing that her days of dating were ended. "For goodness sake, run up to my room and get me some shoes. I'll wait here in a chair."

But a few other young people had come up.

"I dare you to go straight through the lobby to the elevator that way," someone said.

"Second it!"

"Don't dare her. She's dead game. She'll do it!"

Corinne heard the challenges and looked over the laughing group. They were a facsimile of her old gang, in a different setting with a sly sophistication that really had the same fun-loving impulses. She had been lonesome....she had found comrades.

"I'm in! But...." She paused dramatically. "I dare every one of you to take off your shoes and follow me. Ready?"

So it happened that Harry Becker, straining his eyes from the card room, as bursts of laughter came through the door, saw Corinne's flushed face leading a row of girls and men. He got up and strolled to the door. Then he noticed that the whole group were in their stocking feet.

He smiled amusedly. But his smile grew settled as the merriment continued. Corinne laughed and blew him a kiss as she got into the elevator, while the others replaced their own shoes.

Was she too young? Was he tying her down? But by cracky, he wasn't old. He was young, too. Only....just at this time a few years meant a lot. Would she ever be satisfied to stay alone with him, without glamor? Of course she had married him. She had known for him, too, when she had thought he was free. And she would be charming and helpful and on the job. But she must

He went back to his game, a pucker between his brows.

WE WOMEN by Betty Brainerd

PORTRAITS: RAMONA THE REMINISCENT GIRL

Ramona's greatest treasure is her store of anecdotes of the past.

It is her stock in trade and is always on display. She is the girl from whom you have just to escape to read this newspaper with the assurance that it won't start harking back to the past.

She is a type.

She is the Reminiscent Girl.

Everything Ramona sees and everything that happens reminds her of something. "How's this for a view?" you ask. "Lovely!" exclaims Ramona. "It's just like"—and a full description of the summer resort she visited last year follows.

You try a change of subject. "There's Fred Elliott over there. Do you know him?"

"No, but my dear, he's simply a living image of Margaret's cousin Louis whom I met at a party last week. Oh! And wait a minute. I'll tell you who he looks like. He looks like that man who played the lead in 'Arms and the Girl' the other night."

It is useless to relate any kind of experience, no matter how thrilling. Ramona always follows it with one that goes it one better.

If your cousin fell out of a second story window and landed in a hammock, Ramona's aunt fell out of a fourth-story window and balanced on a telegraph wire.

None of Ramona's friends has ever worn a costume, no matter how modern and snappy, which did not remind her of an exact duplicate she once possessed.

It usually takes quite a while to get over the depression which follows a few hours in Ramona's company. She always leaves one feeling like a very poor copy of the real thing.

But some day, her acquaintances comfort themselves, Ramona will meet her Waterloo.

It will be moonlight and the young man of her dreams will be telling her what she has been waiting to hear. And then—Ramona will be moved to her fatal habit of reminiscence. "You know," she will murmur dreamily, "Your kisses remind me—" And it will all be over.

Poor Ramona, the future holds little for her. She is too busy counting over her memories.

She is the Reminiscent type of Girl.

Neenah And Menasha News

TWO MENASHA AND KAUKAUNA TEAMS ON TWIN OFFERING

Double Header Expected to Attract Large Crowd to Park Sunday

Menasha—Lefty Becker, smooth working Neenah-Menasha southpaw, will be on the mound for the Twin City sluggers in the feature game of Sunday's attraction at Menasha Recreation park. The "Pals" are scheduled to meet the Kaukauna nine in Fox River Valley league play at 2 o'clock while the Menasha-Polish Falcons will meet the Little Fox league Kaukauna team in the opening game at 1 o'clock.

The two games will provide one of the best attractions presented at Menasha Recreation park this season and a large attendance is expected. The Falcons are eyeing the top rung of the league ladder and the "Pals" are playing their last game of the season.

Lefty Becker will do the hurling for the Falcons and will attempt to chalk up his fifth straight victory for the Polish squad. A long winning streak, largely due to Powell's pitching, has brought the Falcons to a position only one game behind the league leading Appleton Athletics.

SOCIAL ITEMS AT MENASHA

Menasha—The Kimberly Clark corporation has made reservations at the Menasha city park for its annual company picnic to be held Oct. 4, according to park authorities. The outing will extend through the afternoon and evening, with games, entertainment, a picnic supper and dancing. The date of the day, an attendance of over 500 is expected.

The Ladies auxiliary of the Henry Lenz post of the American Legion will sponsor a guest card party in the S. A. Cook armory, Sept. 18, according to organization officials. Mrs. Robert Shaw will be hostess.

The Avanti club will be entertained Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Emma Gehl. Bridge will be played and a luncheon served.

Third Ward Ruchel Neighbors were entertained Friday evening at the home of Mrs. John Block. Bridge and schafkopf were played and a luncheon served. The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Emma Grosel, Sept. 19.

The meeting of the band mothers' club, scheduled for Monday evening, will be held in the high school auditorium. Several questions relative to Menasha's participation in band tournaments will be discussed by L. E. Kraft, band director.

The weekly park dances given under the auspices of the Henry Lenz post of the American Legion were resumed next year, according to the Legion committee in charge. The dances had been conducted in the Menasha city park pavilion until last week.

St. Agnes church of St. Thomas Episcopal church will open fall activities with a luncheon meeting to be held Wednesday noon. Mrs. George Hinton is chairman in charge of arrangements.

St. Thomas guild will hold an all day meeting Wednesday. Members will join St. Agnes guild members at luncheon Wednesday noon.

The Germania Benevolent Society anniversary dance will be held in the Menasha auditorium Sept. 17, according to organization authorities. An elaborate entertainment program is being planned.

JUNIOR GRID LEAGUE ORGANIZED AT MENASHA

Menasha—A Menasha junior football league has been organized in this city and will begin the season's play at Menasha Recreation park Saturday afternoon. The same players who composed the Junior baseball league during the summer months will participate in the football activities.

Four teams have announced their intention to play with the league. The Grove Juniors, the Third squad the DeForest team and the Park Stars will participate. The Park Stars are scheduled to meet the Third-division aggregation Saturday afternoon and the Grove squad Tuesday.

MANY PEOPLE ATTEND SCHOOL BAND CONCERT

Menasha—A large audience attended the fifth of a series of weekly band concerts presented in Menasha Friday evening. The program was presented from a platform erected by the street department in the city triangle and the Menasha high school band, under the direction of E. E. Kraft, furnished the entertainment.

The high school band was further increased for Friday's concert, and an organization of about 75 pieces participated. The place where the final concert will be played next week, has not been announced.

SEMI-PRO GRIDDERS HOLD FIRST PRACTICE

Menasha—The semi-professional city football team, sponsored by the recently organized "M" Athletic association, will hold its first practice session on the Menasha city park playing field on the corner of Keweenaw and Cleveland-sts., Saturday afternoon. Dr. E. J. O'Keefe, former Marquette star, will put the team through their paces and assimilate the candidates in the positions for which they are best suited.

EPISCOPALIANS TO GATHER IN MENASHA

Menasha—St. Thomas Episcopal church of Menasha will be host to one of the four sectional conferences for clergy, vestrymen, and laymen, Sept. 24. Delegations from several surrounding cities are expected and Professor R. J. Colbert of the university of Wisconsin will be one of the principal speakers.

PREPARE GYM FOR WINTER ACTIVITIES

Indoor Soft Ball, Gym Work and Basketball Play Soon to Start

Menasha—The floor of the new St. Mary's gymnasium was marked off for winter activities Saturday. Girl students will be the first to utilize the gymnasium facilities and regular gymnastic work, indoor soft ball and basketball will be under way within a few days. The boys are devoting the time to football and other outdoor sports and will not begin general use of the building until later in the fall.

Attendance at the parochial school is the largest ever recorded in this city. New class rooms have been opened in the old auditorium and a number of changes to accommodate the increased attendance have been made.

The thrift banking system will begin at the school Tuesday morning. All students in both the high school and grade schools will participate in the project. A vocational school will also be opened Tuesday morning. Students wishing to attend will register with the principal shortly after 8 o'clock Tuesday.

BOARD CONSIDERS NEW OUTDOOR POOL

Menasha—One of the projects to be considered by the Menasha park board for next year will be the construction of an outdoor swimming pool in the Menasha city park, according to park authorities. Although considerable discussion has centered around the feasibility of the pool's construction, no action can be taken before next spring.

The pool, if constructed would probably be 100 to 150 feet in length and about 60 feet in width. The most ideal site would be next to the Memorial building in order to make it possible to build an addition to the building around the pool.

ADVERTISE FOR 1,000 FEET OF FIRE HOSE

Menasha—Advertisement for bids on 1,000 feet of standard fire hose has been made by City Clerk John Jedwabny. The bids will be opened at the meeting of the common council to be held Sept. 17.

The need for additional fire equipment has been discussed by council members for several months. Early last spring, bids were received but rejected.

MENASHA BOWLERS TO OPEN SEASON SEPT. 18

Menasha—The City Bowling league will begin the season's activities on the Hendy Recreation alleys, Sept. 18, according to the league authorities. Final arrangements will be made at a league meeting to be held Tuesday evening.

The Knights of Columbus league will have eight teams in league play at the opening of the season, according to reports. Members of the Germania Benevolent society who wish to participate in league play have been asked to report by Sept. 17.

MENASHA PRIEST WILL LEAVE FOR NEW PARISH

Menasha—The Rev. Clement Kern, assistant rector of St. Patrick's Catholic church, will leave for Walsh in about 10 days to assume his new post in that city. The Rev. Father Kern was transferred to Walsh at a recent meeting of the Green Bay diocese and will be replaced in Menasha by the Rev. Father Kalinski who will come to this city from Sturgeon Bay.

WOODENWARE NINE TO MEET BANTA SQUAD

Menasha—The Industrial league softball game between the Banta squad and the Woodenware team, postponed Thursday evening, will be played on the city park diamond at 4:30 Saturday afternoon. The Banta squad is leading the league by a one game margin and a win for the wood workers would upset the hope in the league standings.

HOLD FUNERAL FOR ACCIDENT VICTIM

Menasha—Funeral services for William Solomon, whose body was found in the Fox River early Thursday morning, were held from the home of John Solomon, 530 Division-st., Neenah, at 10:30 Saturday morning. The Rev. C. E. Fritz officiated and interment was made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Solomon is survived by two brothers, Fred and John Solomon, both of Neenah. The body was brought from the funeral home of the Menasha furniture company to the Solomon residence, early Saturday morning.

GET MANY NEW BOOKS AT MENASHA LIBRARY

Menasha—A large number of adult fiction and juvenile books are being catalogued for immediate circulation at the Menasha public library. Another lot of adult fiction will be placed in circulation some time next week, library authorities state.

Good Music and Chicken Lunch, tonight, Golden Eagle.

1ST WARDERS MEET WITH PLAN BOARD

Commission Outlines Districts to Be Set Up When Zoning Is Established

Neenah—First ward property owners met Friday evening with the planning commission at the city hall to discuss the new zoning maps and districts which the commission has completed. Each of the wards will meet separately with the commission which will hear all complaints and suggestions offered by the residents of the several wards. A slight change was made Friday evening in the First ward light occupation district by designating the four lots at the northeast corner of Elm and Division-sts. as property upon which a neighborhood store can be erected and business conducted. This is directly opposite the high school. The location was formerly at the corner of Division and Oak-sts.

The commission members explained to the first warders the several districts in which only residences can be erected, where light business can be conducted and where manufacturing of the heavier type can be carried on. There are few of the latter districts in this ward. The new ordinance, to be adopted by the council as a permanent ordinance for the city, will be ready after the meetings of the commission and property owners of each ward. The lines, building lines, restricted limits and other things to make Neenah a more beautiful city are included in the commission plans.

NEENAH PERSONALS

Neenah—Miss Leona Christensen left Saturday 10:45 Gillett where she has taken a position as teacher in the public schools.

Willard Schmidt, member of the 1930 high school graduating class, has registered at Lawrence college.

Miss Lucille Ozzanne has returned from Denver where she has been spending the summer.

A. W. Anderson will leave Monday for New York city to attend the annual meeting of the National Retail Jewelers' association of which he is secretary.

Mrs. Dudley Somnig and daughters of St. Petersburg, Fla., are visiting at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Davis at Lime Kiln point.

Miss Alma Woeckner has returned to Minneapolis after spending a few days with Neenah relatives.

Mr. Boerson has returned to Chicago after spending the past week with his brother, Elmer Boerson.

Howard Pope has gone to Marshfield where he will spend the week-end with relatives.

Neal Klausner has returned from Epworth Heights near Ludington, Mich., where he spent the summer months as tennis instructor.

Mrs. Richard Larson of Joliet, Ill., is visiting relatives in the twin cities.

A daughter was born Saturday at Thayer's hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Martin, Neenah.

NAME CHAIRMAN FOR STATE BAND TOURNEY

Neenah—R. M. Sensenbrenner has been appointed chairman of arrangements for the state band tournament to be held in Menasha next year. The appointment was made by the Menasha board of education and announcement made Friday.

Sensenbrenner will appoint several committees to work on the arrangements necessary for the large undertaking. Bands from all over the state are expected to participate and thousands of people will visit Menasha during the band activities.

VOSS IS NAMED COACH AT PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

Menasha—David Voss has been selected to coach the St. Mary high school football team during the fall activities, according to school authorities. A large squad has been reported for practice sessions and nightly rehearsals are being held.

MENASHA HIGH ELEVEN MEETS OCONTO, OCT. 4

Menasha—The first game scheduled for the Menasha high school football team will be played at Oconto Oct. 4, according to school authorities. An attempt is being made to schedule a game to be played on the local field sometime before the end of the month, however. Under the direction of Coach Nathan Calder, the large squad of candidates is being rapidly whipped into shape by daily practice sessions at Butte des Morts field.

G. O. P. CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS WILL TALK

Menasha—Philip Lehner, candidate for congress, will speak at the Menasha city triangle Monday evening. Lehner, a resident of Princeton, has entered the race on the Progressive Republican ticket.

DRUM CORPS HOLDS WEEKLY PRACTICE

Menasha—The Menasha Legion Eagles drum corps held a regular bi-monthly practice session in Eagles hall Friday evening. With the advent of colder weather, the drum corps will hold weekly practice sessions to be conducted on Sunday mornings.

Bowlers Meet

LUTHERAN CHURCH ELECTS OFFICERS

Neenah—Gordon Mortenson was elected president of Our Savior Lutheran church at a meeting of the congregation held Friday evening at the church on Isabelle-st. Others elected were Hans Peterson, vice president; Peter Rasmussen, deacon; Henry Mortenson, assistant deacon; Harry Christensen, trustee; May Peterson, Sunday school superintendent; T. F. Thomsen, member of school board; Harry Didrickson and N. C. Jersild, subscription committee; T. F. Thomsen, treasurer. Nels Larson was re-elected secretary. The church is still without a regular pastor, several candidates are being considered for the position.

NEENAH SOCIETY

Neenah—All teachers in the public schools were guests today of the citizen committee which has been appointed to entertain them each year at the opening of the fall term. For the purpose of getting acquainted, the committee this year transported the teaching group to Oneida Island at Waupaca, where the afternoon and evening will be spent in a social manner with a picnic supper at 6 o'clock. The group left at 1:30 from Kimberly school via auto for the picnic grounds.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Sommers of the engagement of their daughter, Catherine, to William F. Morris of DeForest, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Morris of Washburn. The announcement was made at a tea given Thursday afternoon at the Sommers home on Nicolet-blvd.

Mrs. Collin Armstrong entertained a group of young people Friday evening at a dinner at Hotel Algonquin at Oshkosh. The event was for Miss Mary Jane Duncan who is to be married Saturday morning to Harold Madison, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Madison, at St. Thomas Episcopal church.

A group of 60 men and women of Fox river valley were entertained Friday evening at a dinner by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Clark at the North Shore Golf club. Following the dinner the evening was spent in dancing to music furnished by a Milwaukee orchestra.

Miss Mary Jane Duncan and Harold Madison were married at 11 o'clock Saturday morning at St. Thomas Episcopal church. The ceremony performed by the Rev. A. Gordon Fox was in the presence of a group of relatives and immediate friends. The attendants were Miss Gladys Bjornstrom of Menasha, and R. E. Madson of Chicago, a brother of the groom. Following the ceremony the wedding party and immediate relatives adjourned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Madson, Lake-st., where a luncheon was served. Mr. and Mrs. Madson left at noon for Chicago and other southern cities where they will spend a few weeks before returning to Neenah to reside. Mr. Madson holds a position with the Kimberly-Clark office force.

Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Rasmussen and son, E. R. Rasmussen, the latter of Appleton, are at Waushara to attend the wedding of Alvin Rasmussen, son of the former, and Miss Roma Lobdell of Waushara. The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon after which Mr. and Mrs. Rasmussen left on a short honeymoon trip.

NEENAH COUPLE IN CRASH AT MENOMINEE

Neenah—Mrs. John Williams is at the Menominee, Mich., hospital with painful injuries to her face and eyes and Mr. Williams, Railway Express company agent, is remaining in that city with slight bruises about his face and body which were received Thursday afternoon when the auto in which they were riding collided with another machine. Mr. and Mrs. Williams had started on a week's vacation trip through the north when the accident occurred. Mr. and Mrs. Williams left Friday night for Menominee to spend the week-end with Mr. Williams' parents, and to return to their home Sunday if they are able to travel.

STRANGE IS CHAMPION SINGLES TENNIS PLAYER

Neenah—John Strange is the city's champion singles tennis player, having defeated Edward Boehm during the week in the finals of the annual playground tournament. Edward Neubauer is the city's 15-year-old champion, having won the final matches played, from Robert Larson in the annual playground singles tournament. There are still a few matches to be played in the tournament before the champion can be decided. Mr. Gerhardt's report of the playground work and bathhouse activities shows a very successful season. The report will be presented to the Red Cross and the city council which jointly sponsored the playground program.

MAN IS OVERCOME BY CRAMP WHILE SWIMMING

Neenah—The city ambulance was summoned to Doty Island park at 7 o'clock Friday evening where Vlier Swentner, who was swimming in the lake, was taken with a cramp in the cold water. He was removed to shore where he was taken care of by a physician who had been summoned to the scene.

TWIN CITY MERCHANTS WILL MEET MONDAY

Neenah—The Merchants' association will hold its first fall meeting at 8 o'clock Monday evening at the Neenah city hall auditorium. An amendment to its by laws, changing the name to the Neenah-Menasha association, will be voted on and other important matters for the fall and winter business activities discussed.

NATION'S OLDEST LAWMAKER TO BE 80 YEARS OLD MONDAY

Henry Allen Cooper, Racine, Has Longest Record in Congress

BY RUBY A. BLACK (Post-Crescent Washington Corrs.)

Washington—Henry Allen Cooper of Racine, who has served more years in Congress than any other member of either House, becomes 80 years old Monday, Sept. 8.

For half a century Henry Allen Cooper of Wisconsin has been active in politics and public life and during all but four years of the last 50 has held a public office. His first candidacy for Congress was unsuccessful and after having been in the House of Representatives since 1893, he was defeated for reelection following the war. The only Congress since 1893 of which he has not been a member was the 66th Congress, which expired March 4, 1919, to March 3, 1921. This gives him, to date, a quarter of a century in the House of Representatives.

Veteran of many political battles, Representative Cooper has a rich store of memories perhaps unparalleled in Washington. He talks of his memories, but in his talk one finds no story of himself, for modesty is one of the characteristics of this tall, straight, white-bearded, frock-coated man, who is vigorous 80 mind and body as if he were not rounding out four-score years on Monday, as if he had not spent half a century in the heat of political battle.

CARRIES SKETCH

The 1,740-page biographical dictionary of those who have served in Congress from the beginning up to 1927 carries the following brief sketch of the life of the dean of the House of Representatives: "Cooper, Henry Allen, a Representative from Wisconsin; born in Spring Racine, Walworth-co., Wis., Sept. 8, 1850; moved with his parents to Burlington, Wis., in 1851; attended the common schools; was graduated from the Burlington high school in June, 1870, from the Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., in 1873, and from the Union College of Law (then the legal department of Northwestern University and of the old University of Chicago) in 1875; was admitted to the bar and engaged in practice; elected district attorney of Racine county in November, 1880; moved to the city of Racine in January, 1881; reelected district attorney without opposition in 1882 and 1884; member of the State senate 1887-1889 and author of the bill which became the law first establishing the Australian ballot system in the State of Wisconsin; delegate at Chicago in 1884 and at Cleveland in 1894; delegate at large to the Republican National Convention at Chicago in 1896; unsuccessful candidate for election in 1896 to the Fifty-third Congress; elected as a Republican to the Fifty-third and to the twelve succeeding Congresses (March 4, 1899, March 3, 1919); unsuccessful candidate for reelection in 1918 to the Sixty-sixth Congress; again elected to the Sixty-seventh, Sixty-eighth, and Sixty-ninth Congresses (March 4, 1921, March 3, 1927). Re-elected to the Seventieth Congress.

His biography in the Congressional directory of the seventy-first Congress is even more succinct, for the congressman writes these sketches themselves. It says simply: "LONG RECORD "Henry Allen Cooper, Republican of Racine, lawyer, was elected to the Fifty-third, and each succeeding Congress, including the Sixty-fifth; was not elected to the Sixty-sixth Congress; was elected to the Sixty-seventh, Sixty-eighth, Sixty-ninth and Seventieth Congresses and re-elected to the Seventy-first Congress.

During those years, so colorfully outlined in these biographies, Representative Cooper has seen "Czar" and "Tsar" and has witnessed the Tom Reed of Maine come and go. Speaker and big boss of the House of Representatives. He took part in the fight on the House rules in the days of that other Czar of the House, "Uncle Joe" Cannon of Illinois. Today he opposes rules which make it difficult for individual members of the House to fight effectively for measures they support or against measures they oppose.

Many, too, have been the convention fights in which Representative Cooper has engaged, outstanding being his battle for adoption of platform proposed by the Wisconsin delegation in Republican national convention.

But not only in Washington and Wisconsin is Representative Cooper known and loved. On the other side of the world, out in the Pacific Ocean, there are people who revere his name perhaps above all others in the United States. For to him the people of the Philippines owe the fact that they have their own legislative body. Only last May he was honored again by the Philippine resident commissioners for his work for their people.

The story of that fight reveals his vigor in battle, his eloquence and his political sagacity and craft. He was elected President McKinley to head the Committee on Insular Affairs. Representative Cooper was determined to fight for the rights of the Philippine people.

On a June day in 1902, he made a speech in behalf of the Philippines which is still recalled when people speak of the days of eloquence in the public forum.

For a week he crusaded and at last won in the House against very powerful opposition, including that of "Uncle Joe" Cannon. The Speaker requested Representative Cooper, as chairman of the committee, to name conferees for a joint committee of the House and the Senate. This Representative Cooper refused to do. For he knew that the Senate was opposed to granting a Legislature to the Philippines and he knew his rules well enough to know that the House which first named conferees would lose control of the bill. But he kept the question alive and at last won a favorable joint committee report by a majority of two.

That is why, according to Commissioner Camilo Osias, the Philippines "love him throughout the length and breadth of the archipelago." It was not that Representative Cooper particularly loved the Philippines above other people. It was that he loves justice and freedom above all things.

"love him throughout the length and breadth of the archipelago."

It was not that Representative Cooper particularly loved the Philippines above other people. It was that he loves justice and freedom above all things.

Although Representative Cooper voted for President Hoover, he remains outside the pale of the "regular" Republican party. He enjoys no political patronage. He lost his place on his committee, Foreign Affairs, because he supported Robert Marlon LaFollette for President. Otherwise, he would be chairman.

Representative Cooper's distinguished figure is familiar in Washington society. While he no longer attends functions which keep him out late at night, he is invited to most diplomatic social functions and goes to many. He is a movie fan and he reads the newspapers practically from front to back.

And he will probably live to be at least a hundred with "Sally Cooper," as all Washington calls his wife, taking care of him.

RESUMES HEARING

The Federal Radio commission has resumed its hearings and a number of Wisconsin applications appear on its tentative calendar. The request of the C. Reiss Coal Co. of Sheboygan for a renewal of license to broadcast on a frequency of 1,000 kilocycles, heard on September 3. This station, whose call letters are WSK, has a frequency of 171 kilocycles and power of 1 kilowatt.

On September 5, three Badger State applications were scheduled. Noble Butler Watson of Wausau asked a construction permit for a new station at did Vernon Wright, Jr., of Mauston. Watson sought 1420 kilocycles with unlimited time and power of 100 kilowatts, while Wright asked 1500 kilocycles, unlimited time and 100 kilowatts power. The other application was made by station WKGB through C. L. Carrell of Koshong, for a construction permit on a frequency of 1200 kilocycles, 100 watts power and permission to share time with WCLC.

A hearing on the request of station WISN, the Evening Wisconsin Co., of Milwaukee, for a modification of its present license from 6-7 time to unlimited time is set for September 23, and the Milwaukee Journal Company's request for a construction permit for WTMJ is scheduled for October 6.

The office of Mr. Katherine Lenz of Superior, Assistant Chief of the Children's Bureau, was one of the many totally destroyed in the terrific fire at the Federal Trade Commission building on August 30. Miss Lenz was in Wisconsin at the time of the fire, visiting her father and mother, Judge and Mrs. Irvine L. Lenz, near Brule. She returned to find her office located in Temporary Building No. 5, just south of the Federal Trade Commission's ill-fated home and oddly enough, it is in precisely the same floor wing and direction as her old one.

ONLY ONE D' GROUP

Milwaukee with a population of 572,557 persons according to the preliminary census, county, is Wisconsin's only city of 100,000 population or over. So Wisconsin becomes one of the 12 states having only one great city of this size. However, there are 16 states which cannot boast of a single city of 100,000 population. Moreover, out of 93 cities listed by the census bureau as having a population of 100,000 or more, only 22 surpass Milwaukee's 25 percentage of growth in the past 10 years.

The World Fur Congress, in which participation by the United States was authorized by a resolution introduced in Congress by Representative Edward E. Browne of Waupaca, whose state boasts of its great fur trade and richness and whose own part of the state contains some of the largest fox fur farms in the world, has convened at Leipzig.

And to end the letter as it began, with Representative Henry Allen Cooper of Racine, the First Inter-American Conference on Agriculture, Forestry and Animal Industry, created and authorized by a resolution introduced into Congress by Representative Cooper, will meet in Washington fittingly enough on Representative Cooper's 80th birthday, September 8.

Every important phase in the field of agriculture, both scientific and economic will be covered on the Congress program which will continue until September 20. Sessions will be held at the Pan American Union under the auspices of the U. S. government. Specialists of the Department of Agriculture have prepared more than 50 papers and reports discussing animal industry, crop production, land forestry and kindred subjects. Twenty-one American republics will be represented and this first conference will probably be one of a long series convening in the capitals of the countries of the Pan American Union.

The conference will be opened by the Secretary of State and will be addressed by the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of Commerce and the Chief of the Bureau of Standards.

HUNTERS MUST WEAR BUTTONS THIS FALL

Neenah—Hunters will again wear buttons with their hunting license numbers this fall, according to George Manuel, Winnebago-co. clerk, who has received the county's supply of hunting licenses which are to be distributed the first of the week. Buttons were worn two years ago, but were not worn last year. They are large and have a yellow background. Decoy tags must be used on live birds used as decoys. A fee of 10 cents is charged for each tag. Only five live decoys are allowed to a hunter in addition to a flock of 50 artificial decoys.

DARTBALL FANS TO MEET NEXT THURSDAY

Neenah—A meeting of dart ball enthusiasts has been called for 7 o'clock next Thursday evening at the Eagle club rooms where arrangements will be made for a carball league to consist of 15 teams from lodges and societies and other organizations in the city. Already six teams have been enlisted to play in this league.

Working Together

For high quality and low prices

Between its customers and A&P there is a partnership which works to the advantage of both sides. The customers represent demand on the largest scale. A&P represents supply on an equally large scale.

Customers know they can get at A&P stores whatever they want, the best at lowest prices. A&P, knowing its customers' wants from their daily orders, is never in doubt. It stocks no goods that stay on its shelves unsold. Thereby it avoids losses that would have to be made good in prices.

And because A&P is thus the definitely instructed buying agent of millions of people, it is able to use their united buying power wherever their best interest dictates.

Each customer gets the benefit of every saving, of every wise selection of goods. A&P, relying on many small profits, gains from increasing numbers of customers. They are attracted by the best service at the lowest cost. If there is a surer way of keeping the cost of food down and the quality of food up, no one has told about it.

NEW HATS HAVE DOUBLE BRIMS

Stand-up Effect of Second Brim Is Becoming to Some Faces

BY AILEEN LAMONT
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

New York — Some of the swanky felt hats for fall have a double brim in front, and even the under brim sets pretty far back off the forehead. For the right type of face, nothing is more becoming than the stand-up effect of the second brim. But if the type of face is not right, the result will be a decidedly surprised expression on both the wearer and beholder.

These plique carnations and camellias which began to edge over the horizon some time ago are now with us in full force. They serve as boutonniere on the lapels of smart autumn coats, both topcoats and suit coats, and are seen on the shoulder of tailored dresses.

In case you're the type to whom flares are becoming, you may flare twice in the same dress. There's the flare contrived by the Russian blouse at about the hip line, and the flare contrived by the hem of the skirt. But if you're not slender, beware the hipline flare.

THE READER
I know a delicate boy of thirteen who sits in the window seat reading by the hour. Sometimes he reads two books a day. Tommy in the Alps. Tommy in the sea. Tommy everywhere. He likes them in series and his mother provides them just that way.

My fingers itch to make a good venture of the whole lot and take the boy out into the open and set him playing with the other lads. "He isn't strong enough for that," says his mother. "He likes to sit in the house and read."

Pressed on this point she finally said, "Well, I know where he is when he sits there with the books." That is not a wise thing to do with a child, boy or girl. Reading is a fine habit. But reading books as one might take sedatives is a dangerous habit. And it is not reading. I doubt that this boy could tell you the story of Tommy in any field although he has read him round the world and back again.

Reading for pleasure, reading for recreation, reading for information, is a sort of reading that uses the brain and enriches the mind is greatly to be praised. But dulling the mind with rubbish that goes over the brain cells like rain over the roof, is sheer waste, and worse. I would not banish the series sort of book but I would limit them severely if I found that the children were reading them exclusively and for the purpose of killing time. I would supply the children with good books. Not dull, closely printed, adult books, but the new beautiful books that are on the market today. I'd like to see the boys and girls reading Sons of Seven Cities, they couldn't use it as a sedative. I'd like them to read McNeill's books of adventure, they stir children to action. They cannot read such books in big doses.

If you have a reading child, one who sits by the hour consuming empty books, clean up the library without any words about it. Lay a couple of good books on the table. Now routine the child's day. Program it so that he has hours in the open, play, work, and association with other children even if you have to take him with you to secure it. Allow him his hours for reading but only when he has been well exercised in the open air.

A boy in the early stages of adolescence needs work and play in the open air. If he refuses them, if he insists upon isolation, take him to a competent child expert and have him examined and put under treatment. If you cannot have this done by your private physician go to the best clinic in your neighborhood. But place the child under expert care so that his growth may be steady and strong.

Ask yourself if it is your wish that he sit in the house and read. Ask if the books he is reading are worthwhile. What effect are they having on this child's thought, on his health, on his growth? Then do something about it. (Copyright, 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

KAWS WILL MEET NEENAH-MENASHA IN FINAL GAME

Baseball Season Will Close After Sunday's Game at Paper City Park

Kaukauna—Kaukauna will end its baseball season Sunday afternoon at Menasha when the team mixes with Neenah-Menasha in a Fox River Valley league tilt. Kaukauna rests in fourth place in the league and a win Sunday and a loss by Green Bay will put the Kaws in third place. The locals have nine games won and ten lost.

Going in the league has been rather rough for the Kaws this season, though at one time they led the league. A number of the games were lost by close scores and extra innings. Last year the Kaws were the second place holders. Wisconsin Rapids leads the league though a loss by them Sunday and a win by Appleton will put the two teams in a first place tie.

Vnuik pitcher who came to the Kaws late in the season and already gained a reputation as being dangerous will do the hurling for the Smithmen. Wenzel will catch. Vnuik came to the Kaws from Manitowish, and although he lost most of his games, his hurling was of good caliber.

Nixon, noted underhand pitching artist will be on the mound for the Neenah-Menasha line. Nixon has proved to be bad medicine for the Kaws on several occasions. The summer with his underhand ball. A win over the locals will put the Menasha team a notch ahead of Kaukauna in the league.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU

If September 7th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to midnight. The danger period is from 8 a. m. to 9:30 p. m.

The benign influences in force on September 6th will be continued on this date and a quiet contemplative day can be anticipated. A "sufficient unto the day" attitude will be maintained, and the blessing of the hour enjoyed. A secret revealed.

Children born on this September 7th will have good dispositions, contented minds, and stolid natures. They will have few annoying complexes, and will have normal, healthy tastes and outlooks. They will be average students, rather slow in their development, clinging to their childish enthusiasms and pleasures.

You are a decided intellectual type of being, and are ruled almost entirely by cold reason. If cleverness were the only passport required, your success would be a foregone conclusion. You flaunt your "smartness," although you could afford to keep quiet about it. You are snobbish in your wisdom, and are impatient and intolerant toward those whose minds cannot keep step with yours. You patronize, when you should fraternize, and make enemies when you need friends. You need to forget your superiority. You need to be more human in your contacts with your fellow creatures.

You are witty and can be very sarcastic, and you delight in mimicking the peculiarities of others, whether they be friends or foes. Those who cannot give back as well as you give, are afraid of your critical, amused attitude. You are an egotist in your religious views, although you are not very spiritual. A lively, intelligent argument is as the breath of life to you. You enjoy high class literature, and are interested in the sciences. You have extravagant tastes, and you enjoy the luxuries of life. 158,840 HUNTERS IN STATE IN '29

Wisconsin Was Thirteenth in Number Reports at Washington Show

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington — A total of 158,840 Wisconsin sportsmen took out hunting licenses in the season of 1928-29 to put their state thirteenth among all the others in the number of such licenses issued to residents, the Bureau of Biological Survey of the U. S. Department of Commerce announces.

The revenue from these Badger state hunters' licenses plus the license fees charged 229 non-residents who were attracted to Wisconsin by stories of its unexcelled hunting, totaled $148,881.

In the country as a whole more than 6,425,000 hunting licenses were issued in that season, bringing in a revenue of more than $9,390,000. This is a slight decrease in the number of licenses issued but an increase in money receipts when compared with the preceding three years. These figures include combined hunting and fishing licenses but not licenses issued for fishing alone.

New York state led both in the number of licenses issued to residents, 671,728 and non-residents, 5,409, but was second to Pennsylvania in its money returns. Pennsylvania issued a total of 517,783 licenses for $998,834, compared with New York's 677,137 for $703,047.

Only 17 states licensed more than 1,000 non-residents. Maine was second and Massachusetts third in this respect.

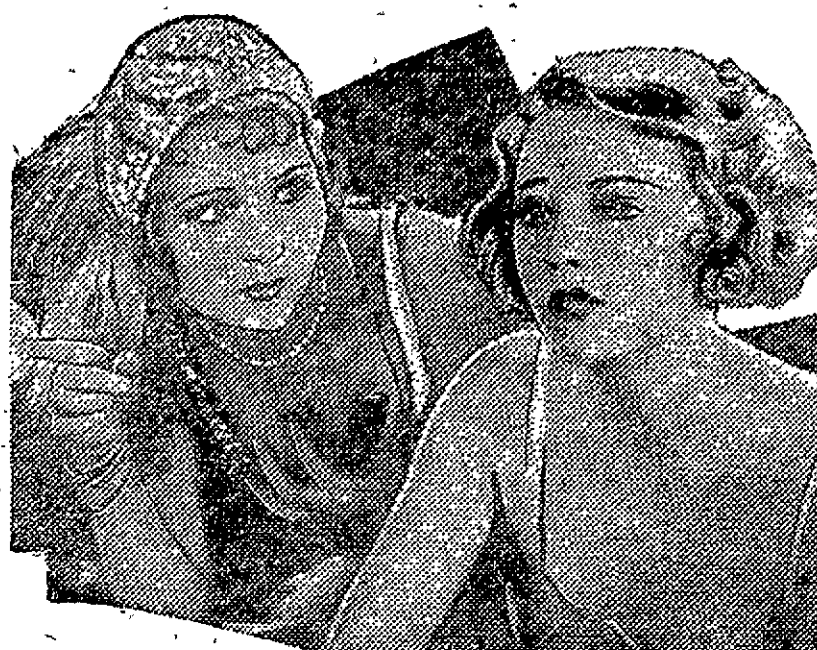

MUST INSTALL WATER PIPES AND SEWER SOON

Property owners on W. Fourth-st. between S. Story-st. and S. Mason-st. have been notified by the city clerk that all water, sewer and other underground connections must be installed within the next 30 days. The street will be paved in 1931, and installation of all underground piping at this time will eliminate any necessity of tearing up the street in the future.

ALICE JOYCE IN "HE KNEW WOMEN"

Two Veteran Players Share Honors With Two New-comers in This Film

Two veteran screen players share honors with two new-comers in "He Knew Women," Radio Pictures' all-talking comedy drama now playing at the Appleton Theatre.

Lowell Sherman, suave and sophisticated leading man and an outstanding motion picture favorite plays opposite Alice Joyce, long known as the screen's best-dressed woman and one of its most competent actresses. Two players who are practically new to the screen vie for honors with Sherman and Miss Joyce. They are David Manners, who scored a sensational success in his first picture role as Raleigh in "Journey's End," and Francis Date, talented blonde ingenue from the Broadway legitimate stage.

"He Knew Women" is an adaptation of the successful New York stage play "The Second Man," by S. N. Behrman, one of America's most successful playwrights. It is a smart society drama of love in the four hundred, with a number of amusing and effective twists which remove it far from the conventional.

Produced in most effective fashion, brilliantly played by its well-chosen cast, and notably directed by Hugh Herbert, "He Knew Women" is expected to score a hit with local audiences during its run here.

A NICE GIRL COMES TO TOWN
By Margie Greif

Chapter 22
"THOSE JOBS"
CLARICE did not seem impressed by Mason's threat to reveal her life history to Brynmor.

"You mean about my living in the slums, dancing in tough joints? Oh, well, there's nothing very bad about that. More credit to me that I pulled myself out of the mire."

Brynmor chuckled. "Credit to you? Who gave you the chance to get training to be a good dancer? You know I've never stoned you."

"Well, I've paid you back, haven't I?" she demanded. "How about all those jobs I've helped you pull off?"

"Oh, yes, those jobs. What would Master Brynmor think about them?"

She decided to try another line of argument.

"Come on, Freddy, be a sport," she pleaded. "I've always wanted to go straight, marry into decent society. This is a good chance for me, and I hate to turn it down. Besides, I'm fond of Brynmor. He's a decent kid."

Freddy yawned and stretched his arm.

"I've told you what's what, Clarice. You either give up all ideas of this wedding, or I'll spill the beans to the handsome bridegroom. He'll be amused to hear of the little trick we turned together at the Emerald Dragon. It's funny, but didn't it occur on the very night that you became engaged to him? Quite romantic, I'd say."

With that he left her. She heard him chuckling in the hallway as the maid handed him his coat and hat. But she didn't hear the few words he whispered in the girl's ear. She wasn't going to have her whole life ruined just because of him. She'd outwit him—but how? That needed thought.

Was she to confess everything to Brynmor? Trust to his love to prevent him backing out? That solution she set aside as being too risky.

She never had been wholly convinced of Brynmor's love. At times it flavored too much of imitation. Besides, there were the objections of his father, Colonel Whitmore. No, the danger was too great. Somehow she must contrive so that Brynmor was left in ignorance—at least until after the ceremony.

"If only Freddy could be kept out of the way for the next few days," she thought. "Then he can say what he likes and go to the devil for all I care!"

There came another idea, but her first reaction was to shy away from it. It was an easy way out—yet it would be a detestable trick. Still, Freddy had threatened to use equally detestable means to stop the wedding. Wouldn't it be excusable if she turned the tables on him?

Now that she was before Clarice finally decided to put her idea into action. Even then, with her hand on the telephone receiver, she hesitated.

In the old days Freddy had given a good pal to her. He had given her the chance to make good with her dancing. In a way she was fond of him. Until Brynmor came on the scene she had been altogether averse to the idea of clearing out with him for some other country.

Now all that was changed. Marriage with Brynmor would lead her into a very different life, one which appealed to her as far more agreeable. She always had longed for an entree into society. And, apart from that, she liked Brynmor himself.

Now that she was so near to attaining her dream, would she let Freddy ruin it? Not if she knew it!

A few minutes later she had an inspector of Scotland Yard on the telephone.

"This call is anonymous," she said in low-pitched voice. "I believe you're working on the recent series of robberies in various night clubs. 'Gentleman Freddy's' four man. He's not abroad, as you think. You'll find him tonight at No. 11 Red Hart Square. But you'd better be quick."

With that she rang off. She was breathing heavily as she put down the receiver. Now that she actually had done it, she experienced a sense of fear. If Freddy ever found out...

A noise in the hallway caught her attention. She sprang to her feet and threw open the door.

The maid was on her knees, polishing the floor. Clarice stared at her in surprise. "What are you doing, Gwen, polishing the floor at this hour of night?"

"The gentleman had such muddy feet. I thought I'd clean it up before I went home, miss," the girl apologized.

Clarice didn't comment, but her suspicious were aroused. What should there have been muddy foot prints in the hall when it hadn't rained that day?

In the light of his approaching marriage, Brynmor had dismissed all worries about Freddy Mason. Instead, his mind was agog with thoughts of the wedding—and the Paris honeymoon with Clarice. He had the special license and tickets to Paris in his pocket.

He glanced at the evening paper as he dashed home. The headlines read: "Daredevil Tony St. Missing."

That meant continued grief for Mary Lou. At once Brynmor had the impulse to telephone her and extend his sympathy. Surely, it would do no harm, and it might cheer her up.

Mary Lou's voice sounded truly grateful when he did call.

"Oh, yes, you're still hopeful," she replied to his question. "I'll let you know if we hear anything."

Her sincerity embarrassed Brynmor.

"I—I'm afraid I won't be here for the next few days," he stammered. "You see, I'm being married tomorrow. We're going to Paris for a few days, you know."

He felt tactless in saying it, yet Mary Lou seemed positively enthused. He had to admit that she had been the best kind of a sport about the whole affair.

"She's a topping kid," he pondered as he hung up the receiver. "Wish I hadn't been so mean to her that first night she came to town. But, after all, that's a thing of the past."

He dressed rapidly. Clarice didn't know his plans for a honeymoon, and he was eager to break the news to her.

Brynmor had considered his father's objections to the marriage, but they didn't seem so serious now. What could his father say, once he really was married? Colonel Whitmore always had been reasonable about most things, and Brynmor only hoped he would take a decent attitude when it came to accepting Clarice as a daughter-in-law.

He hailed a cab and urged the driver to make all possible speed toward Clarice's flat. He had walked the distance many times, but tonight it seemed that the cab was inexhaustibly slow. Congested traffic at several corners made it even worse.

Finally Brynmor stepped out, his face flushed with the excitement of anticipation. He ran up the stairs, started to ascend the stairs to Clarice's door. A sound behind caused him to look back.

As he did so he felt the grip of a hand on his arm, and the figure of a man stood beside him in the dimly lighted stairway.

"Hello, Whitmore. Just going up to see Clarice, were you? I think I'll come along, too—in law."

Brynmor recognized the voice immediately, and with a sharp sense of annoyance. Who else except Freddy Mason spoke with such a sneer? What was he doing here tonight of all times? Thoroughly disgruntled by the fellow's interruption, he turned to face Mason directly.

"What's the big idea, Mason?" he demanded in irate tones. "I'm sick of seeing you whenever I come to see Clarice. What's your game in trailing me like this, anyway? I'm taking Clarice out to dinner tonight, and I want no interference from you or anyone else."

"Calm yourself, lad," he replied. "I won't be bothering you much longer. If we never see each other again, we're going to see Clarice together. This time, understand?"

Brynmor decided it was best to say nothing, and they mounted the stairs to Clarice's door.

In the next chapter Brynmor is jolted by some news that staggers him.

SUNDAY'S GAMES

Appleton at Green Bay.
Kim-Little Chute at Wisconsin Rapids.
Kaukauna at Menasha.

AUGUST Brand's Fords of the Fox River Valley league will ring down the curtain on the 1930 baseball season Sunday afternoon at Green Bay.

Although the game means nothing to the Bays except another ball game, the Fords will attempt to anchor a victory because of the mathematical chance they have of tying or the bunting with Wisconsin Rapids.

The Rapids is booked to show with Jimmie Little Chute and holds a one game lead over Appleton in the league race. Should they suffer a defeat and Appleton win, then the two teams would be tied. But there's but as much chance of that as a piece of watermelon surviving a conglomeration of colored gentlemen.

Left Art Behr who made a home or himself in these parts by some telling hurling and a couple timely one runs will be on the mound for the Fords. He probably will be posed by Dave Zuidmulder or Rowe, the latter a youngster who hurled good ball the last time the teams invaded the ancient city.

Green Bay is the only club Lefty as not beaten this year, not having won the mound against the Sox. He is anxious for at least one win over all teams in the valley and will be in there Sunday, whistling that all of his down the alley in hopes of chalking up another dozen strikeouts.

There will be no changes in the old lineup Sunday. Eddie Kotal going back to the coaching line and fully Schultz to third. Last week total inserted himself in the lineup, hopes of getting a hit in the fifth frame. He didn't. And then when the game went extra innings and Eddie had to play third base he took a big chance of bobbling a drive to a crucial moment.

Many Appleton fans who have been following the team this season will take the jaunt to the Bay. The Fords have been playing great ball for the last six weeks and of course fans like a winner. The game will begin at 2:30 out at Joannes park.

Green Bay—The 1930 Valley league season ends Sunday with a session of the bunting still in vogue but Wisconsin Rapids looks to be a sure bet for the gonfalon.

The Rapids took bats with Kim-Little Chute in the lead and aggregation and a win clinches the championship. The Appleton club, a one behind Huber's aggregation, Green Bay, in case the Rapids could lose and the Collegians win, clubs would be tied for the top of the heap.

Marty Lamers plans to pitch Hammen, a youthful left hander against Wisconsin Rapids. This recruit outwep looked pretty good against Bays last Sunday. It will be Kotal and McLean for the Rapids. Kaukauna is booked for Nee-Menasha. This should be quite a snaking duel if Joe Vnuk and Fred Nib, both happen to be having one of their "on" days. Les Smith and are determined to chalk up a story as it may advance the Kaws notch in the final percentage list.

3 RIDERS ENTERED IN BICYCLE RACES

Kenosha — (P)—Forty-three riders on 24 states were here today for opening of the national amateur bicycle championships.

Governor Kohler of Wisconsin accepted an invitation to fire the opening gun at 2:30 this afternoon. The events were arranged for this morning, and the finals for Sunday the same time.

Bobby Thomas, Kenosha, who won last year, was a favorite to take a title. The champion turned professional last winter.

Two New Yorkers—Frank Keating and James Miller—led off the hopes of a east. Keating won the senior race at Gotham, while Miller coasted me with the junior laurels.

What the Stars Did Yesterday

Paul Waner, Pirates—His ninth-hits homer beat Cubs, 8-7.

Pete Jaborowski, Indians—Stopped hits Sox with four hits to win, 6-1.

Heinie Manush, Senators—Collected and three singles off Yancey pitching.

Bruce Cunningham, Braves—Pitched effectively against Giants, threw seven hits and winning, 6-4.

Al Simmons, Athletics—Atted in lead of Red Sox with double and run-fourth homer.

ANCKOCK TO COACH OSHKOSH PRO ELEVEN

Oshkosh—(P)—Officials of the Oshkosh All-Stars, professional football team, announced that Howard J. Hancock, former Badger athlete and director of athletics at the Oshkosh school of athletics, will act as advisory coach for the new team.

All-Stars play the Green Bay Packers at Green Bay on Sept. 14.

Rally in Eighth Wins for A's Who Have Almost Cinched Flag

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

THE principal worry of the followers of the Philadelphia Athletics is whether they can find places in Shibe park when the A's meet the champion of the senior circuit in the world's series.

The Athletics have eliminated all but two rivals from even a mathematical chance of taking the American league flag. Washington and New York are left with only hopes of overtaking the world's champions.

The Senators remain 6 1/2 games behind the Athletics. The Yankees are fifteen games away from first place.

Cleveland fell by the wayside yesterday although winning its seventh game in succession, defeating the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 1. Philadelphia also won a game and the Indians, were left 18 games behind and with only 17 to play for each team.

Jablonowski held the Sox to four hits and missed a shutout only because of a Cleveland error.

In a mound duel between Jack Russell and George Earnshaw, Boston was only one run behind up to the eighth inning when the A's scored three runs, two on Al Simmons' thirty-fourth homer.

Washington gained nothing by slugging the Yankees around for 15 hits to defeat them for the seventh time in 21 games this season by a 14 to 0 count.

Babe Ruth resumed home run hitting operations with his forty-fifth homer.

Detroit and St. Louis had a day of idleness as did four of the National league clubs.

The St. Louis Cardinals profited by this day of rest, going into second place in the national league standing, four games behind Chicago, without making an effort as the Cubs and New York Giants both lost.

New York dropped to third as the Boston Braves hung a third straight defeat on the Giants, 6 to 4.

The Cubs led the Pirates almost to the final moment, then went down, 3 to 7, under a final Buccaneer rush. Trailing 7-0 at the end of the sixth, Pittsburgh scored three runs in each of the next two frames to drive Pat Malone from the mound and tie the score. In the ninth, Paul Waner came up after one man was out and clouted a home run over the right field stands to win the game.

174 GOLFERS ENTERED IN NATIONAL AMATEUR

New York—(P)—One hundred and sixty-five golfers stand between Bobby Jones and his fourth championship of the year.

A field of 170 has entered the thirty-fourth amateur championship to be played at the Merion Cricket Club, Haverford, Pa., Sept. 22-27. Thirty-six holes of qualifying play will be staged on Sept. 22 and 23, reducing the field for match play to 32. Two 18-hole match play rounds will be staged on Wednesday, Sept. 24, but the rest of the week's play will be at 35 holes.

Sports Question Box

Question—Where is Kirsleski playing football now?
Answer—He will play with the Newark team next fall.

Question—Pitcher walks three batters in succession. The next batter hits a high foul and the catcher misses it and is charged with an error. Then the batter hits a homerun. Are all the runs earned?
Answer—Yes.

Question—Where is the German fighter Dr. Harman of whom we heard so much last year?
Answer—He was recently knocked out in Berlin in a fight for the German heavy-weight title.

SHERIFF BLAKE LOST TO CHICAGO BRUINS

Pittsburgh — (P)— Sheriff Fred Blake today failed to answer the roll-call of Cub pitchers, and may not answer it again this season.

The sheriff was shipped back to Chicago last night for an examination and treatment of a wrenched abdominal muscle suffered during the Philadelphia series in Wright's field.

Blake was not the only starting pitcher to be ailing for Charlie Root's strained arm suffered a relapse yesterday and may keep him out for another week.

OWEN CARROLL IN WIN OVER KERNS; SAINTS VICTORS

Defeat Cuts Louisville's Lead to 3 1-2 Games; Milwaukee Loses

Chicago—(P)—Owen Carroll, former Detroit and New York hurler, who was sent by the latter to Toledo a few weeks ago, has given notice that he doesn't intend to remain in the American association, if he can pitch himself out of it.

Carroll got away to two indifferent efforts, but yesterday came up with an impressive four-hit victory over the leading Louisville Colonels. The former Holy Cross university ace gave out nothing but singles while his mates punched hits off Guy Williams and Ken Fennor for a 9 to 0 decision.

The defeat served to trim Louisville's margin over St. Paul to three and one-half games, as the Saints defeated Milwaukee, 8 to 7. George Davis pounded out a hit that was good for a homer inside the park in the ninth, to drive in the winning runs, but was held to a double by the rules. Vernon Gomez, another former Yankee, was credited with the victory after succeeding Slim Harries and Murphy.

Kansas City turned on Minneapolis and scored a 7 to 3 victory to move a step nearer the first division.

A first inning that produced seven runs, and some lesser gatherings along the way, gave Columbus an 11 to 9 victory over Indianapolis in the third game of their set. After House had been batted from the mound in the first inning, the Senators were forced to extend themselves to keep the Indians at Bay.

ALL-STARS PLAY BAY SOFTBALLERS SUNDAY

Green Bay—Green Bay's all star diamond league team, which represented the city at Minneapolis last week-end, will play Appleton All Stars at Joannes park Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

The All Stars are coming up from the down river city with an impressive record, boasting 33 victories against two defeats, for the season in Fox river valley cities. They have a speedball pitcher in the person of Mortell, who last week hurled 1.5 team to a 14 to 2 victory over the Green Bay Badgers at Appleton.

The diamond league team will be represented by Douville, M'ching and "Honey" Christensen catching as the battery. The infield will consist of Destache at first, N. Collard at right short, C. Collard at second, Henning at left short, and Becker at third, with Clancy, Roskams and Evans in the field.

Mortell and Ryan will be the Appleton batters.

SUNDAY'S GAMES

Appleton at Wrightstown.
Kaukauna at Menasha.
Neenah at Little Chute.

LITTLE CHUTE baseball team in the Little Fox league will wind up its home season at the Little Chute park Sunday afternoon with Neenah. Kimberly-Clark team as the opposition.

The "Hollanders" have an even break in the season's standings to date but have been the victims of some bad luck. They have had a good team all season, just so good that when Marty Lamers of the Valley league team needed a couple of players he went to the youngsters and took Hammen, pitcher, and Lamers, Jr., a catcher and the two now are playing good ball in fast company.

A new hurler and catcher have been acquired by the Chuters for Sunday's game. Wery, formerly with Combined Locks, who will toe the mound for the Hollanders and Brown who once caught for Appleton Athletics, probably will do the receiving. The Villagers are talking up Sunday's game in hopes of a large crowd. The team needs the financial help and with a break from the fans will just about break even on expenses.

Appleton Athletics, nursing a lead that is very, very small go to Wrightstown for their afternoon's toll, the outcome of the game deciding whether the A's stay in first place or whether there will be a new resident on the top rung.

The third game will see Kaukauna trying to master Jerry Powell's slants over at Menasha.

FOREST HILLS SCENE OF MEN'S NET TOURNAMENT

Forest Hills, N. Y. — (P)—Thirty-one first round matches start the ball rolling in the national men's singles tennis championships at the West Side tennis club today.

Although many of the 95 entries have drawn first round byes and do not compete until Monday, both Big Bill Tilden, favored to win the title for the eighth time, and Jean Borotra, formidable French contender, swing into action the first day.

Tilden is matched against C. Lincoln Halberstadt of New York, an hour after Borotra's match with Berkeley Bell, Austin, Texas.

FOX MAY SET EARNING RECORD AT BELMONT

New York—(P)—William Woodward's Gallant Fox takes the track at Belmont park today, seeking the Lawrence realization three-year-old stake and its accompanying purse of $30,000, which will send the Fox's total earnings soaring above Zev's record of $123,000. The Woodward ace already has amassed more than $287,000.

The thirty-eighth running of the stake is expected to develop into a real horse race with James Butler's Questionnaire and William Ziegler Jr.'s Splash offering stern opposition. The race is at a mile and five furlongs.

GENE SARAZEN WINNER OF MEMORIAL OPEN

Salisbury, N. Y. — (P)—Gene Sarazen has added the J. J. Lannin Memorial open championship to his list of golf triumphs and $2,000 to his purse. He did 70 on his last round yesterday to win the tournament a single stroke ahead of Walter Kozak. Sarazen's 72-hole total was 257.

VITENSE, M'GOWAN TO PLAY IN STATE OPEN

McLarnin Will Weigh 142 For Singer Brawl

BY WILBUR WOOD
Copyright, 1930

RANGEBOURG, N. Y. — After giving away weight in most of his important fights, Jimmy McLarnin is going to face a lighter foe when he gets into the ring with Al Singer at the Rancocas stadium next week. Jimmy usually has been able to come in at catch-weights and still be a few pounds under his opponent. Though he must make 145 for the Singer brawl, that amounts to little more than catch-weights for him.

Charles (Pop) Foster, McLarnin's grizzled mentor and best pal, figures that his boy will not have more than six pounds on Singer, and in a ten-round fight, as Pop sees it, that does not amount to much. McLarnin expects to scale around 141 next Thursday afternoon and put on hardly more than a pound additional after leaving the scales.

HORTS SUFFER AS BULLS ADMINISTER SEVERE PUNISHMENT

Share Prices Rise Substantially Following General Upset

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York.—(P)—With their courage regained, bulls administered a severe punishment to shorts in today's stock market, and share prices rose substantially, as trading quickened to the best Saturday pace since early August.
The meagre success of the bear campaign of the middle of week, resulting in a brisk covering movement yesterday, decidedly emboldened the speculators for the rise. U. S. steel was bid up across 173 for the first time since the June crash, and nervous shorts hastened to buy back shares.
The advance embraced most of the important groups, with the exception of the oil issue, as U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Consolidated Gas, S. P. Corporation, Consolidated Edison, General Electric, American Can, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Telephone and Telegraph, and New York Central, rose to 3 points. Among high fliers, Rogers Rand mounted more than 10 points. The closing tone was strong. Total sales approximated 1,800,000 shares.
Commission houses have reported a decreasing volume of investment buying, but such orders have in the main been placed at the market, and have not been executed at rising prices. Today's session continued to be primarily a professional nature, with short covering providing much of the momentum.
Brokerage circles, however, appeared to be turning decidedly bullish, and in contrast to the bear propaganda heard a short time ago, there was considerable gossip over unprofitable bearish rallies. One story had it that one of Wall Street's leading bankers had just returned to town with a more friendly attitude.
The day's news was meagre, but susceptible to bullish interpretation. The Weekly Mercantile Review expressed considerable optimism, but of a restrained nature. A sales executive of one of the leading manufacturers of low priced automobiles stated that the retail car market for that type had improved considerably. Such estimates of next week's stock schedules as were available indicated little change.
The bull movement was aided by announcement of a recapitalization plan for diamond match, calling for a splitup of the present shares and payment of a special cash distribution. The present stock rose several points to new high ground.

TODAY'S MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York.—(P)—Stocks strong; U. S. Steel crosses 173, highest in three months.
Bonds firm; Argentine heavy. Curb easy; utilities rally. Foreign exchanges easy; Argentine peso reacts.
Cotton: Lower rains in western sugar. Holiday.
Coffee: Holiday.
Chicago.—Wheat, firm; bullish Argentine political reports.
Corn, steady; unfavorable Iowa crop news.
Hogs, steady.
Narrow changes made in N. Y. bond market
New York.—(P)—Bonds made narrow changes in today's two-hour market. Convertible and other bare feature issues turned upward in sympathy with stocks and a few turned over in fair volume.
There was little activity elsewhere in the list. Ralls, utilities and industrial held firm and many showed a change from yesterday's high levels. Scattering declines were made in small issues.
Argentine obligations turned easy on the political news from that country, but other foreign bonds shared in the general firmness.
Fractional advances developed in such convertible or warrant issues as Baltimore and Ohio 4s, International Telephone 4s, Reading Coal and Iron 5s, St. Paul 5s and Shell 5s.
United States governments were steady.

FOREIGN EXCHANGES

MONEY RATES FAIL TO STIFFEN WITH LABOR DAY PASSING

Fact Is Indication That Business Has Not Yet
Started on Upward Swing

BY PRESTON S. KRECKER
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

New York — Although Labor Day has come and gone, the customary stiffening of money rates that bankers look for at this season of the year has failed to materialize. Call money rates at 2 1/2 per cent, commercial paper at 3 per cent for the best names and bankers' acceptances are discounting at 1 1/2 per cent. In early September a year ago call money was 9 per cent, commercial paper 6 1/2 per cent and acceptances 5 per cent.

The continuance of money rates around the low levels of the year signifies that the annual fall expansion of trade has not yet set in, although now overdue. Delay in appearance of that expansion does not mean, of course, that it will not ultimately materialize. Crops are moving and eventually that movement will be translated into larger trade.

The delay in the seasonal rise in money rates is accentuated by two fundamental causes. One is the fact that business has diminished in volume. The other is that commodity prices have declined.

SEE BIG DROPS

Compared with a year ago the latter are down 124 per cent according to some compilations and 17 per cent according to others. Less money and credit are required to finance business than in recent years.

The condition statement of federal reserve member banks as of Aug. 27, the latest date to which statistics are available, shows a reduction in "other" loans of $84,000,000, which brings the total down to lowest figures since early June, when those loans registered the low of the year to date at $8,402,000,000.

Since June 25 "other" loans, the bulk of which are represented by commercial credit, have declined $156,000,000. Usually during the latter part of August commercial loans register a gain. The fact that commercial credit outstanding has diminished instead of expanded suggests that business in general is not only increasing its supplies of goods but is still tending to retrench.

While commercial loans contracted last week, loans by member banks on securities expanded $92,000,000, or nearly the total decrease in the other. That expansion of loans on securities should not be interpreted as meaning that use of credit for stock market purposes is expanding.

SWITCH CREDIT

The increase in all probability was due almost entirely to switching of stock market credit from brokers' loans to customers' loans. In other words, security owners elected to transfer their security loans to their own banks.

Banks have been completed to take over a large amount of loans formerly made through brokers during the year and still are doing it, although a little progress seems to have been made in some directions towards curtailing such credit. As a consequence loans on securities reported by member banks are $383,000,000, larger than a year ago despite liquidation in stocks. On the other hand, commercial loans have diminished more than one billion dollars in the same time interval. The figures are impressive evidence of the shifting currents of bank credit during the last 12 months.

In view of the liquid condition of commercial credit, and the minimum amount of reserve credit in use, the heavy outstanding volume of bank loans on securities, which constitutes about one-half of all outstanding bank loans, is causing little misgiving. Bankers themselves minimize the possible dangers of such a situation. They take the view that banks are fortunate to be able to loan large amounts of securities in view of the decline of more than a billion dollars in commercial borrowing.

HAVE HATS CLEANED AND ECONOMIZE, SAY RETSON AND JIMOS

Local Cleaners Use Original
Methods in Cleaning Head
Wear

In a few days straw hats will be hung aside until next summer, and felt hats again will be in vogue. There will be a steady rush for new fall and winter hats, regardless of whether last year's hat is lying on a shelf at home, almost like new, except for a little dust which might have accumulated.

Save money by having your old hats cleaned, say Retson and Jimos, expert hat-cleaners on W. College ave. There is no reason why expensive hats, worn last season shouldn't suffice this fall and winter, they point out.

With modern methods of cleaning, hats can be made to look like new at prices ranging from 30 cents to $1.

Retson and Jimos have a method all of their own. They have never received a complaint since they opened here some nine or ten years ago, they report.

There is no after-odor of gasoline or other cleaning compounds when your hat is returned from the Retson-Jimos shop. Their method of cleaning does away with damaging cleaning compounds of acid content.

When you are ready to start wearing your felt hat again, bring down last year's model, give it the once over, and then bring it to Retson and Jimos to be cleaned.

Question: 'Where Is Europe' Troubles French Politicians

BY JOSEPH E. SHARKEY
(Associated Press Correspondent)

Paris (AP) — Fervent French federalists are wondering how to answer the question: "Where is Europe?"

For just where Europe begins and ends, geographically and legally, is looming up as a primal problem in the attempt by Aristide Briand, foreign minister, to bring into existence a union of the nations of the Old World.

Practically all countries except Great Britain are for the federation idea. In principle—with plenty of reservations—but there is a considerable divergence of views as to just what nations should logically come into the combination.

For instance, Italy says Russia and Turkey should be included. Greeks also want Turkey in the proposed combine, because "Turkey is a Balkan power and a Mediterranean power."

Before the war Turkey was both Asiatic and European in public conception. The war cost the old Ottoman Empire most of its European territory. On the other hand, Turkey has become modernized in a European sense and many statesmen believe it essential that Turkey should be drawn further towards Europe.

Russia has always been admitted by both Europeans and Asiatics as a national entity. The question of whether the European aspect of Russia can come into a union limited to Europe will be a foremost problem when the powers meet at Geneva in September.

Lastly, it is pointed out here, there comes the greatest question of all, namely, whether the British Empire, with its dominions, can be treated as a logical element of Europe. Some French circles believe that the negative nature of the British reply to Mr. Briand's project gives a good opportunity to decide that the proposed union should be strictly limited to that part of the earth known as the continent of Europe, and that island nations should not be included. These circles argue that the British Empire constitutes after all a federated union all by itself.

Once this geographical puzzle is adjusted, there will remain several other difficulties that might be earmarked potential pitfalls.

The first of these is the contention of some nations like Germany and Italy that the projected union should lead to a revision of treaties. The danger of this demand is that Europe instead of finding itself united by stronger links would find itself split into two camps.

In the first would be those nations which conquered in the great war and preach the doctrine of keeping things as they are; in the second, those conquered nations who would press for a revision of the treaty of Versailles.

These same anti-Versailles powers, moreover, want disarmament offices here in the Hecker-Kamps building, has been attending the review courses for many years, learning the latest methods in chiropractic technique and neurocalomet work.

Hundreds of the leading chiropractors from throughout the country, graduates of the Palmer school, gather at the institution to assimilate more knowledge, so that the gospel of chiropractic can be spread throughout the country in a new, better and revised form.

In addition to knowledge acquired through these long years of constant study, Dr. Panneck has equipped his offices here to meet the demand of all his patients. He has restored health to hundreds, and accepts no cases in which he cannot benefit the patient, he reports.

If you don't seem physically fit, consult Dr. Panneck. He will point out the nerve or nerves that is causing your trouble, that is being impoverished, due to pressure upon it.

Dr. Panneck's slogan as applied to his treatments is "If the spine is right, the man is right."

UNION PACIFIC IS SOMETIMES SEEN AS INVESTMENT TRUST

Large Holdings in Stock of
Other Carriers Give It
Reputation

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

EDITOR'S NOTE: (This is a series of brief analyses by Mr. Hughes on railroad securities. The intent is not to recommend the purchase or sale of any particular stock but to give the investor such information as may enable him intelligently to chart his own course.)

New York—Sometimes known as a railway investment trust because of its large holdings in the stock of other carriers, Union Pacific commands an investment rating for all of its securities, bonds, preferred stock and common stock. According to the balance sheet as of December 31, last security holdings had a book value of over $200,000,000 or over $90 a share on Union Pacific common.

The road owns approximately one-third of the capital stock of Illinois Central, almost $55,000,000 capital stock of New York Central, over $5,000,000 in Baltimore and Ohio common and over $1,500,000 in Baltimore and Ohio preferred, over $4,400,000 in Chicago and Northwestern common and $1,345,000 of St. Paul preferred besides a large block of St. Paul adjusted 5 per cent bonds and of the St. Paul mortgage.

It has often been rumored in the market that the Union Pacific would distribute to its shareholders these holdings in stocks of other railroads but there has never been any official countenance given to this idea nor is there any good reason to believe such a plan has ever been seriously considered by the directors. The income from these investments is estimated at $4 a share on Union Pacific common and almost one-half the present $10 annual dividend.

Last year earnings from all sources were equivalent to $20.37 a share; this year at the present rate should return around $17 a share more or less depending on traffic conditions which cannot be accurately forecast now. In any event, the dividend is entirely secure, a fact which is reflected in the market price of above $200 a share, making the investment return considerably less than 5 per cent.

Union Pacific has a preferred issue which meets the investment requirements of the most conservative. It has sold this year at a price to yield about 4.50 per cent which is lower than the return to be had on a good many high grade bonds. Union Pacific's bonds themselves are investments of the highest type.

GOLDY CELEBRATES FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF STORE SATURDAY

Biggest Little Store in Town
Handles Smokes, Refreshments, Novelties

The "biggest-little store" in town, Goldy's, located at 105 S. Appleton-st., just south of College-ave, in the Spector-bldg., is celebrating its fifth anniversary Saturday. According to the manager and owner, Harry A. Goldstein, the business has been increasing daily because of the quality of merchandise sold and the service given customers.

The store carries a complete line of high-grade imported novelties and tricks, both novel and highly amusing. Anyone planning a real party would do well to look over the many novelties and receive suggestions for entertainment.

Cool and refreshing drinks are served at Goldy's soda fountain. Ice cream cones are served in the famous, home-made Kakee cones and are highly appetizing.

Goldy's rich creamy malted milks, which are served with crispy wafers have become the byword with drinkers of the favorite concoction. His fresh, juicy, delicious "Kakee" is, by a long way, the biggest and best in town are served hot at all hours and are very popular with those who must eat their lunch in a hurry.

Goldy has earned a reputation among discriminating smokers of the city for having "what you want when you want it and the way you want it."

High grade exclusive brands of domestic and imported cigars of which Goldy is sole distributor in town are always obtainable.

The cigars, cigarettes and tobacco are kept in air tight cases where they retain their original freshness. A complete line of smoker's articles, leather goods, high grade pipes, lighters, razor blades are included in Goldy's large stock.

"Once a customer, always a customer" is the motto of the store that daily is becoming more popular with the young men of the city. The store is also well patronized by young women, who have become staunch boosters of high delectable refreshments.

Goldy issues an invitation to all his old customers and to those that have never visited the store to drop in Saturday and visit with him.

INCREASE IN RAIL
TRAFFIC IS SEEN AS CHEERING NOTE

Believe Upturn May Be
Push Needed to Start Business on Recovery

BY J. C. ROYLE
(Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press)

Washington — (CPA) — Railroad traffic, both passenger and freight, is increasing. This is a seasonal trend but it is of added importance this year. Only a slight push is necessary to start general business on an upward course.

Business is a good deal like a freight car, according to railroad men. It is hard to move when it is stationary but comparatively little power is needed to keep it moving and increase its pace once it is in motion. The present seasonal trend may be the lever which will give the freight car of business its initial impulse.

How little push is needed is indicated by the assurances that baring power has lost little of its volume. Reports from savings banks show that deposits are growing instead of receding. This means that savers have not had to dig deep into their reserves. They have cut down spending but they have the money to buy, and the slackness of buying is due to a mental attitude rather than a lack of funds. The movement of savings deposits has been especially noticeable in Richmond and Baltimore, although the drought has been especially severe in the sections covered by the Virginia and Maryland banks.

SEES PROFITS

Profits for the next 13 months are being virtually insured by many far-sighted manufacturers. They are holding down production but they are buying extensively of raw materials. They feel that if commodity prices have not touched bottom, they are only a hair's breadth from it. They figure that it is better business policy to have their money tied up in cheap raw materials, which they would have to buy eventually anyway, than out at interest in the present period of low money rates. It was this policy which made the English cotton manufacturers so hard on New England producers to beat in the past. The extent of foreign buying of this character cannot be accurately determined now, for such buying is being done as much under cover as possible in order not to boost prices.

Some backward industries are doing far better than a year ago. This is true of coal. The drought has cut down power production considerably, and coal producers are being called upon to make this for. The demand for gas, both natural and artificial, has sided the petroleum industry. So has the high rate of gasoline consumption. Production of crude oil has been fairly constant. The anthracite mines are working practically at capacity and additional soft coal properties are being opened in the Midwest.

Steel demand continues remarkable.

ably high and constant. The automobile industry is far from satisfied with sales but there is a feeling that these sales are merely being deferred, not lost. There is a fine seasonal demand for agricultural equipment but the main profits of implement manufacturers this year are expected to come from foreign business. The dairy industry is in fine condition, so far as demand and stocks are concerned, and improved equipment is cutting overhead and helping to make up feed bills.

Retailers are finding installment sales to be the backbone of their business. This factor, once viewed with so much alarm, is vindicated itself as a business policy and showing the dependability of the average American buyer. Wholesale trade has picked up since the Labor Day holiday and buyers again are streaming into distributing centers.
